Prologue

-From the archives of Candlekeep

[A letter which was handwritten in 1359 DR by a wizard of much renown at that time (“Bavo Fairview of Baldur’s Gate”) in response to his former apprentice’s inquiry into curses. According to studies, the apprentice-turned-wizard “Elezol Barbedbeard” had survived the First Dragonspear War, but she had been afflicted by a nasty curse handed down by the god Tempus. The exact nature of the curse has been lost to time, as well as anything about Elezol.]

[This letter is the Forward to the book “Category of Godly Favors and Disfavors”, which in itself has been copied many times. The book lists blessings and curses observed over millennia. Its purpose is to help practitioners of magic to learn the consequences of defying the rules of the heavens, hells, and other realms. Some of the curses listed inside were experienced by wizards who have read earlier drafts of the book. These increasing incidences in later editions, in the opinions of the Great Readers, “...can only serve as increasingly improving warnings to future generations.”]

To my favorite pupil, Elezol Barbedbeard

It pains me to learn that you’ve survived the onslaught of orcish armies, only to earn the wrath of their god. Perhaps complete extermination of his followers was in hindsight not a good idea. It’s always best to leave a few survivors, so they can cower in caves and continue to placate their unfair godly lords. Ah, but you ask for my advice, and I shall give it to you as I always have: without restraint and in full honesty.

In a universe where there are gods, there will be wars between them. Sometimes, those wars are direct and brutal. Other times, most times, those wars are tactical and silent. In these later situations, the gods do not don armor, grab lightning bolts, and rush off to face their enemies head on. That would be stupid, and the gods keep their immortality because they’re smart.

Generally, when a god fights and defeats another, they expend much of their resources to do so. Afterwards, they are weak, without supplies, and low on allies. They become easy targets for both enemy gods and mortals looking to steal some immortality. To fight another god is to accept their own death. So what’s the next best thing? You guessed it: mortal followers.

Mortals pray to the gods, and the gods listen. When the gods hear a prayer from a particularly strong individual, they reply. They reach out to the mortal, promise to answer their prayers, and all they ask in exchange is the mortal’s eternal service. Most mortals are not smart as the gods, and they fall into these soul-binding contracts easily. From that point on, the mortal is a servant; a warrior in their god’s army.

But even with servants, sometimes it pays to reward particularly wonderful acts of servitude. It inspires others to try to achieve the same, and the god suddenly gets a rush of loyalty in their armies. It spreads like wildfire, and the servants are invigorated with a strength they knew not before. Even for gods, it pays to respect mortals earn it.

To be fair to the divinities above, not all view this as a means of controlling the masses. Some are genuinely good-natured and want the best for their followers. Yet, even with these gods, they cannot extend their blessings to just any of their servants. If they place a sword of divine light in the hands of a paladin, they will receive greater results than if they were to give it to a weak-willed fool plagued by old age. It just pays more to help those who help themselves.

Then there's the notion of punishment. When a servant does something bad, the god can take away their blessings and leave the individual in their sorrow. This is an easy solution, but what about those pesky mortals who do not worship that god? What if they worship one of the god's enemies, and the fact that this mortal did something particularly heinous made the god look weak and foolish?

That means it's time to punish someone. Curses go a long way in controlling mortals. Threaten one with an incurable sickness, broken mind, bad luck, and that person will run away screaming in fear. Mortals are very aware of their mortality, and when it's threatened, most will do anything to avoid it. And for the ones who don't: cursed! They live out their lives as wretched examples to others of what happens when you disrespect the gods.

And yes, there are ways to remove curses. Sometimes, a mortal is unique and can resist the curse. Most times, they get the curse. They go to magic wielders and pay for their services, and the curse goes away. But no one makes the gods look like fools. When a personalized curse from a god is removed, someone must pay in blood. Usually, it's the magic wielders, the formerly-cursed, and anyone who gets in their way. If the mortal survives, then that's that, but a god never ever forgets being humiliated by a mortal. Remember that.

So, in conclusion, if you go to such a magic wielder, be they a cleric or mage or other, also surround yourself with capable warriors. You'll find yourself removed of your burdens, but you might also be removed of your head. I send my best wishes to you, my favorite pupil, and if you survive, I will enjoy having a cup of tea with you.

*Best Wishes,
Bavo Fairview the Wise*

Introduction

I quite honestly got this idea after playing the game Bladur's Gate 3. While progressing through certain mini-quests, my characters came across some curses; naturally. Most went away, but others required the higher spell "Remove Curse" to get rid of. There was even one in which an angel appeared to fight me as punishment. Then as the game progressed, and I played the Durge storyline, I saw that Baal gave me a rather high-powered boon. That's when it clicked for me.

Why don't I execute the same things in my own games? Gods are everywhere, and the adventurers are pretty much either pawns or problems in the divinities' plans. Wouldn't it make sense that the gods bless those who do good jobs and curse those who don't? Not in a way where the character becomes an unplayable demigod themselves, but perhaps anywhere from a small thank you blessing to a major gratitude blessing.

The more I thought about it, the more it seemed like a good idea. Players get XP as a default, but sometimes good RP and choices deserve rewards outside of loot. The same goes for murderhobos who think they can spit in the eye of chaos and be immune from consequences. If you pillage a church, kill everyone inside, and then burn it down, perhaps there should be an immediate drawback.

This book is by no means an all-inclusive list of every god out there along with their standardized collection of boons, blessings, and curses. I'm sure there's a few books out there already that lists something like what I've typed down. Use the book as you will. If you don't like the DC or specific stat-altercation I've attributed to a god, change it. It's your game. This book is more of a guideline, but feel free to use what I've written down. D&D should be as easy as it is fun.

Divine Sanctions and their Categories

The following is the loose guideline that I made for myself when creating Blessings, Boons, and Curses.

Rank: Minor, Major, and Legendary.

Each Divine Sanction is measured by these three ranks. Minor is usually for something that is easily done, Major for something difficult, and Legendary for an almost impossible feat.

Duration: Until Short or Long Rest, or Permanent

Divine Sanctions with a minor rank are the ones that will most likely be short-lived. They happen once, and then they're gone. Blessings and Curses that are Major or Legendary tend to be permanent.

Trigger: Nature of Sanction or at All Times (X)

Sometimes, a Divine Sanction must be activated by a certain scenario or environment. The only rhyme or reason is based on the gifting god and the nature of their Divine Sanction. If they don't have a trigger, then assume they are always functioning.

Blessings

Blessings are gifts of the gods. They are anything from spells to stat-bonuses, and they are not to be taken lightly. Typically, gods will only grant their followers Blessings. This is because the gods are limited in how much of their power they can use outside of their personal realms. The more they exert, the weaker they and their realms become.

When a god grants a Blessing, they are solidifying their relationship to a mortal. That mortal has proven themselves to be devout and that they will less likely stray from the path. Usually, the mortal is also already somewhat powerful, hence their ability to already accomplish difficult tasks for their god. The Blessing is just a little addition to the mortal's impressive abilities.

This should be seen as a reward for roleplaying for a god's favor, and it should definitely NOT be seen as an expected payment. A Player whose Character receives a Blessing should feel very lucky and accomplished. If a Player decides to demand a Blessing from their god, perhaps they'll earn a Curse instead. Gods' care not for the whining of the ungrateful servants.

Blessings has an additional category, which are Bans.

Bans: Boundaries and Violations

Giving power to mortals is always dangerous, and there are built-in safeguards within Divine Sanctions that will remove such powers. A special note to Dungeon Masters; this is not the only way Blessings are taken back. Know that the gods are fickle, and they will remove their Blessings if they feel like they've been offended in any way.

Types of Blessings

The exact nature of a Blessing is very fluid. It's not as easily calculable as Boons, which is based on single spell casts. Blessings affect a character's stats, conditions, abilities, and much more. The following are examples in what ways a Blessing can benefit a Character.

Permanent Spell Casts = Cast a spell freely once per Long Rest.

Proficiencies = Gain a Proficiency in a tool, musical instrument, language, or Ability.

Permanent Spell = A spell's ability is always in effect.

Advantage = Have Advantage on an Ability Check or Save.

Increase AC = Conditionally or Permanently.

Bonus to Damage Rolls = Conditionally or Permanently (to self and/or allies)

HP Buff = Temporary HP

Movement Speed = Increase of max speed in 5 ft increments.

Attack Range = Increase of range in 5 ft increments.

Spell Casting = Cast spells at higher level with no additional cost.

Spell Slots = Regain lost spell slots or have permanent increase.

Conditions Immunities = Blinded, Exhausted, Fearful, ect.

Additional Actions or Bonus Actions = Self explanatory.

Actions and Bonus Actions Exchangeable = Self explanatory.

Formula (Guidelines)

As in every situation, the Dungeon Master should be the one to determine how powerful something should be. What one Dungeon Master would consider a Minor Blessing, another might consider it to be a Major or even Legendary Blessing. If a Player is bringing in a Character from another campaign, and it has a Blessing, this should be discussed with the new DM. Perhaps the new DM doesn't even allow Blessings in their game, which should be respected.

Minor Blessing = Conditional or low powered, and is usually temporary.

Major Blessing = Low powered if permanent, and maybe conditional.

Legendary Blessing = Almost always permanent and sometimes conditional.

Boons

Boons are technically a type of Blessing, but they're simpler and gods typically will reward them to anybody (not just the devout). Boons allow a single casting of a spell without having to expend current spell slots. They are not restricted by class or race, and they can be cast at any time the Player wishes. Think of them as sort of a non-transferrable spellscroll.

Typically, a Boon is a great way to reward good roleplaying. The Player who took the time to listen to the old woman's entire backstory should get a Friends Boon. The Player who risked a mortal opportunity attack in an attempt to keep the sacred tree from burning should get a Greater Restoration Boon. The Player who manages to turn in their mortal enemy to the authorities could get a Feeblemind Boon.

This doesn't always have to be the case. A Boon could be the result of completing a hard task, but not one the character's god considers to be that impressive. For example, after killing the leader of the thieves' guild, the character could be rewarded with an Invisibility Boon. It's a nice "tip" for a Player completing a task. If they don't deserve it, you don't have to tip them.

Formula

Minor Boons = Cantrips to 3rd Level Spells

Major Boons = 4th to 6th Level Spells

Legendary Boons = 7th to 9th Level Spells

*Boons have no Duration or Trigger.

Because Boons are typically handed out to non-believers or indifferents, their required Deeds are of equal level or less to that of Deeds for Blessings. Thus, they will not be detailed.

If the Character is not a spellcaster, then they will use the listed Spellcasting Modifier supplied at the beginning of a God's Boons.

As a general rule of thumb, Boons are handed out to those who kill an enemy of that god.

Minor = Creature of CR 6-10

Major = Creature of CR 11-15

Legendary = Creature of CR 16-20

Curses

The gods are very similar to mortals in one capacity above all others: emotions. They feel the same range as their servants do, and they will act on them. If a god gets angry, they will lash out. Unlike mortals, the gods are not limited by a physical form; only by their imaginations.

Similar to Blessings, the Gods do not hand out curses often. It takes time and energy to curse a mortal, and it's usually seen as a foolish move by the other divinities. A mortal has to do something pretty severe to be punished in such a way, and the god usually makes sure that the curse is well known. What's the point of cursing someone if they don't serve as an example of what not to do?

Unlike Boons and Blessings, Curses can be removed. The safest way to do so is to appease the god who gave the curse in the first place. Otherwise, the afflicted mortal can get assistance from another god, or they can simply use "Remove Curse" on themselves. This last option is seen as an offense to the gods, and once a curse is broken in such a manner, the god in question will send a war-ready soldier/monster/beast/aberration/etc to kill everyone involved. Curses are not to be taken lightly.

Dungeon Masters must be weary of handing these out. The best use of them is for roleplaying purposes, such as creating a quest to atone for a Character's sins. They can also be used as a means of "punishment" for Players who actively derail a story for unwarranted purposes. With this latter option, I suggest caution. Punishment from a DM is almost always seen as unfair, and you're likely to get a rage quitter than someone who will try to rectify their mistake. If you have a problem Player, solve the issue outside of the game before making in-game "life lessons".

Curses have two more elements to them: Warding and Reconciler.

Warding: Spiritual Resilience

When a Curse is cast upon a mortal, it doesn't always work. Sometimes, the individual is too strong of mind/body/spirit to be affected. When a Curse is cast by a god, the Player rolls a relevant Saving Throw at DC 10 + a variable Difficulty

Minor = 0-3

Major = 4-6

Legendary = 7-10

Reconciler:

Removing Curses through the spell Remove Curse has immediate consequences. A devoted creature, referred to as a Reconciler, is summoned to attack within striking distance. When this happens, everyone involved must roll Initiative. The Reconciler will be returned to their realm once they have been killed or have killed their intended targets (the once-cursed and the individual who removed the curse through magic). The type of creature usually depends upon the god who cast it, but their CR level is based on the Rank of Curse.

Minor = CR 1-5

Major = CR 6-10

Legendary = CR 11-15

Types of Curses

Calculating a Curse is exactly the same as it is for calculating Blessings. They are all unique, and the Dungeon Master should take care in what they choose. The following are examples in what ways a Curse can afflict a Character.

Condition Debuffs = Blinded, Charmed, Deafened, etc.
Stat Negation = Lowering of Abilities and/or Skills.
Disadvantage on Checks/Saves: Either situational or at all times.
Decrease AC = Situational or Permanent.
Negation to Damage Rolls: Conditionally or All (to self and/or allies)
Lowered HP = A fixed amount.
Decrease of Movement Speed or Attack Range = In 5 ft increments.
Reduction or Removal of Spell Casting and Spell Slots = Self explanatory.
Fewer Actions or Bonus Actions = Self explanatory.
Delayed or Reoccurring Damage = Based on next Short/Long Rest.

Formula (Guidelines)

Minor Blessing = Conditional or low powered, and is usually temporary.
Major Blessing = Low powered if permanent, and maybe conditional.

Auril, Goddess of Winter

Auril, the Frostmaiden, interacts with mortals more frequently than most gods. This is because she is actively trying to freeze over the world, even to the point of overextending herself while alienating her allies. This puts her in the dire situation of needing to empower her servants, so that they can spread her influence wherever possible. Divine Sanctions from Auril come easily, but commonly with restrictions. She does not allow disobedience, and she generously Curses those who stand in her way.

Blessings

Minor: “Snowy Passage”

Deed: Dedicated a priceless work of art to Auril by letting it sink to the bottom of a frozen lake.

Effect: When in Arctic Terrain, you are not affected by Difficult Terrain and you get Advantage on Survival Checks.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: This immediately fails when exiting the Arctic Terrain.

Major: “Cold Steel”

Deed: Slayed a huge-sized water beast of Umberlee.

Effect: Whenever you make an attack with a Melee Weapon, you can add an additional 1d4 Cold Damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: A somatic prayer to Auril as a Bonus Action. Lasts for 1 minute.

-Bans: Never use this Blessing against a creature loyal to Auril.

Legendary: “Ice Heart”

Deed: Removed a magical barrier preventing the spread of the Frostmaiden’s realm.

Effect: You have Advantage on Charisma Saving Throws.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never fall in love, unless to Auril.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Constitution)

Minor: Gust of Wind (LV.2 Evocation; SRD)

Major: Cone of Cold (LV.5 Evocation; SRD)

Legendary: Whirlwind (LV.7 Evocation; SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Howling Winds”

Offense: Gave aid to an enemy of winter who was dying from frostbite.

Effect: You are at Disadvantage for all Perception Rolls involving hearing.

-Duration: Until after the next Long Rest.

-Triggers: x

-Warding: 10 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Yeti (CR: 3, BR)

Major: “Frozen Evil Eye”

Offense: Disrupted a celebration dedicated to Aurile on the Midwinter Night.

Effect: You are Vulnerable to Cold Damage.

Effect: You cannot take Bonus Actions or Reactions.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: x

-Warding: 18 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Adult White Dragon (CR: 13, SRD)

Azuth, God of Wizards

Azuth, a collector of arcane knowledge, has a direct connection to magic wielders. He does what he can to guide their quest for knowledge, but he also keeps them from endangering the world with magics not meant for mortals. He is a teacher as well as a guardian, but many see him as a gatekeeper of true power. If a wizard does dare to threaten the mortal plane in a quest for power, Azuth will mercilessly release his full power upon them.

Blessings

Minor: “Reader’s Quest”

Deed: Donated a collection of old and rare tomes to a school of wizardry.

Effect: You can now read any one written language of your choice.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: “Studios Mage”

Deed: Refused to expend a high-level spell scroll in the face of certain death.

Effect: You can cast an additional spell at your highest available level.

-Duration: Until you reach your next spell-casting level.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Legendary: “Mind of Aether”

Deed: Managed to stop an evil spellcaster from attempting to cast Epic Magic.

Effect: You automatically succeed on learning any new spell and add it to your spellbook.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never attempt to cast or even learn of Epic Magic yourself.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Detect Magic (LV.1 Divination; SRD)

Major: Mordenkainen's Private Sanctum (LV.4 Abjuration; SRD)

Legendary: Feeblemind (LV.8 Enchantment; SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Tired Eyes”

Offense: Being a wizard yourself, you stole a spell scroll from a friendly ally, who is also a spellcaster.

Effect: You become blind and automatically fail all sight-based rolls.

-Duration: 1 Hour

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 10 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Couatl (CR: 4, SRD)

Major: “The Wizard’s Ire”

Offense: Destroying a library full of spell scrolls for no benefit other than spite.

Effect: You roll all your Saving Throws against Wizard spells at Disadvantage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Blue Slaad (CR: 7, Monster Manual)

Legendary: “Fool’s Burden”

Offense: Attempting or helping to cast Epic Magic for the purpose of becoming a god.

Effect: Your Intelligence Rating is reduced by 2.

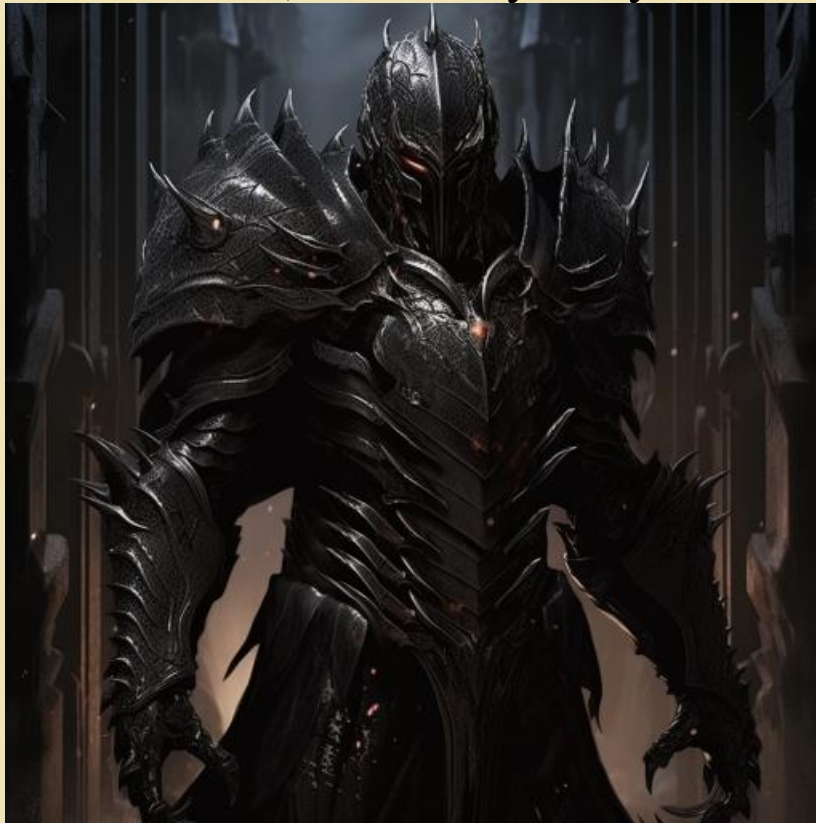

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: x

-Warding: 20 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Archmage (CR: 12, SRD)

Bane, God of Tyranny

Bane wants nothing more than complete control of the universe. However, he realized a long time ago that a ruler needs both allies and loyal servants. None would ever accuse him of being generous, but he does gift those in whom he sees potential for leadership. If all that is needed for a child to become a tyrant is a little gift of power, he is more than willing to give it in exchange for servitude. When his gifts are taken for granted, he sees it as an affront to his right to rule, and he will burn his foes to ashes with his inglorious wrath.

Blessings

Minor: “Piercing Glare”

Deed: Killed an individual who was once your lawful ruler.

Effect: You gain Proficiency in Intimidation.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may never be sold into slavery.

Major: “Sovereign Might”

Deed: You made the leader of an opposing army swear their allegiance to you instead.

Effect: You may cast the spell Dominate Person once per Long Rest without spending a Spell Slot. Charisma is your spellcasting modifier for this spell.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Legendary: “Phantom Crown”

Deed: Returned from death, of your own machinations, after being slain by your “allies”. This is part of your secret plan to take over power during the confusion, and they never realized it until it was too late.

Effect: You are Immune to Enchantment-based spells.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Bane (LV.1 Enchantment; SRD)

Major: Mass Suggestion (LV.6 Enchantment; SRD)

Legendary: Antipathy/Sympathy (LV.8 Enchantment; SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Doom’s Echoes”

Offense: Convinced a member of the Black Hand to abandon their faith.

Effect: You gain the Frightened Condition when a worshiper of Bane uses the spell Bane on you. You also gain this condition when in a temple of Bane and are within 50ft of its leader.

-Duration: 1 minute.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 13 DC, Charisma.

-Reconciler: Imp (CR: 1; SRD)

Major: “Brain Spike”

Offense: Deposed a tyrant who was an openly devout worshiper of Bane.

Effect: Receive 1d4 Psychic Damage whenever you attempt to make a Persuasion Roll.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 15 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Nycaloth (CR: 9, BR)

Legendary: "Rended Spirit"

Offense: Helped Mystra become aware of a devious plot against her by Bane. Without your assistance, she would have never been aware and might have succumbed.

Effect: Immediately fail Saving Throw against the Dominate Person spell.

-Duration: 10 Years

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 18 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Ultroloth (CR: 13, Monster Manual)

Beshaba, Goddess of Misfortune

Beshaba cares deeply about the welfare of mortals. More specifically, she cares how much misfortune they experience. In her eyes, her divine authority is not to cause misfortune, but to prevent it. Jealous of her twin sister Tymora (goddess of luck), Beshaba demands worship from all and inclusion in any religious ceremony. When she is ignored, whether out of fear or indifference, there is much suffering. Those few mortals, usually women, who gain her favor are gifted moderately but with heavy restrictions, lest they think they are immune to misfortune themselves.

Blessings

Minor: “Halitosis”

Deed: Carried out punishment upon those who tried escaping their gambling debts.

Effect: Cast this spell effect at a target within a distance of 10ft. Affected entity takes 1d4 Poison damage and must succeed a Constitution Saving Throw (DC is 10 + your Intelligence Modifier) or take an additional 1d12 Poison damage.

-Duration: Until after your next Short or Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You are not allowed to gamble in any game.

Major: “Hand of Misfortune”

Deed: Took revenge upon a festival that refused to include Beshaba in their offerings, usually in the form of killing the festival’s leaders.

Effect: Choose a target creature within 60ft. They must make a Wisdom Saving Throw (DC is 10 + your Intelligence Modifier). If they fail, they must make all Charisma-based Rolls at Disadvantage until after their next Long Rest. You can cast this spell effect once per Short Rest, but recasting it within 24 hours will remove the effect from the previous target.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must give a proper offering or prayer at every Beshaba altar you come across.

Legendary: “Speaker of Grievances”

Deed: Punished a mortal personally blessed by Tymora by taking away one-by-one the gifts they were given, yet allowing them to live to suffer in their misfortune.

Effect: Once per Short Rest, you may force a target creature to reroll for any Action. If this roll happened to originally be a Critical Success, it is now a Critical Failure.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must never speak ill of Beshaba. Also, if someone speaks ill of her in your presence, you must make them suffer.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Mind Sliver (Cantrip Enchantment; Tasha’s Cauldron of Everything)

Major: Eyebite (LV.6 Necromancy; SRD)

Legendary: Psychic Scream (LV.9 Enchantment; Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Curses

Minor: “Fool’s First Impression”

Offense: Casually ridiculed Beshaba as a god not worthy of praise.

Effect: Roll all of your Charisma-based rolls with creatures you’re meeting for the first time at Disadvantage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Meeting a new person.

-Warding: 13 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Cambion (CR: 5, Monster Manual)

Major: "Change of Fate"

Offense: Destroyed an altar, shrine, or church dedicated to Beshaba.

Effect: Any Gold Pieces or Magical Items you find within 24 hours and then keep on your person will disappear from you after a Long Rest.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Going to sleep for your Long Rest.

-Warding: 16 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: The Lost (CR: 7, Mordenkainen's Tome of Foes)

Legendary: "Forsaken"

Offense: Helped someone cursed by Beshaba not only escape their curse, but also regain their wealth and good fortune.

Effect: You may never roll a Critical Success. If you do, you must immediately reroll.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Rolling a Critical Success.

-Warding: 19 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Rakshasha (CR: 13, SRD)

Bhaal, God of Murder

Bhaal's single purpose is to murder. He does not care who is murdered, how they are murdered, and for what reasons they are murdered. He only cares about ending life. For those who murder in his name, he somewhat appreciates both creativity and the strength of the fallen prey. But above all, a murder must happen. Those who fail to kill in his name earn his most pure and unforgiving ire. It could be said that his favor is one of the easiest to gain of all the gods. It only takes a lack of morality and the strength to swing a blade.

Blessings

Minor: "Sharpened Blade"

Deed: You completed your expected murder of the Tenday in the middle of the night.

Effect: For one time only, you may double the amount of damage dice rolled on a single successful Melee Attack.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: “Hero Slayer”

Deed: Without any help, you murdered a beloved and famous adventurer without anyone noticing you were there.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you may take a Bonus Action and summon a Displacer Beast. It is loyal to you and can follow simple one word commands, such as “Attack” and “Flee”.

-Duration: Until after a Long Rest. The beast returns to its realm.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never tell anyone of who you killed, and never admit to it.

Legendary: “Bhaal’s Chosen”

Deed: You murdered the last surviving member of a divine bloodline.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you may take an Action and transform into a Nabassu (CR: 15, Monsters of the Multiverse). While in this form, you retain all your memories and willpower, but all of your Stats are now the Nabassu’s. This form can be dropped if you lose all your HP, or if you take a full Action to return to your normal form. All Inventory transforms with you, but you are unable to benefit from your inventory until you return to your normal form.

-Duration: Until the beginning of your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: If Bhaal commands you to murder someone, you must follow through with it to the best of your abilities.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Dexterity)

Minor: Darkness (LV.2 Evocation, SRD)

Major: Hold Monster (LV.5 Enchantment, SRD)

Legendary: Power Word Kill (LV.9 Enchantment, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Weak Wrist”

Offense: Prevented a low-level murder by a Bhaalist as part of their Tenday ritual.

Effect: Both a “1” and a “2” rolled on an Attack roll counts as a Botch.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 11 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Imp (CR: 1, SRD)

Major: “Golden Apple”

Offense: Converted a large cabal of Bhaalists towards a Good-Natured deity worship.

Effect: Whenever there are more enemies against you than you have in your Party, all of your enemies must roll a Wisdom Save at DC 15. If they fail, their first attacks must be at you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever combating more enemies than you have in your Party.

-Warding: 15 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Howler (CR: 8, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Bloodlust”

Offense: Refused to kill someone marked for death by Bhaal, even though you swore to him you would.

Effect: Every day, you must successfully kill one humanoid. If you don’t, your Intelligence and Charisma scores become 1. You cannot cast spells, activate magic items, understand language, or communicate in any intelligible way. When the next morning arrives, these negative effects go away, and you earn one level of Exhaustion.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: At the fall of night.

-Warding: 20 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Purple Worm (CR: 15, SRD)

Chauntea, Goddess of Agriculture

Chauntea loves to help guide mortals into cultivating the lands. She loves to see both the growth of civilization alongside the wilds, and with neither harming the other. Wherever there is prosperity and abundance of food, it is usually done by her hands. When mortals show her acts of humility and listen to her guidance, she shows them the beauty of nature and how it must be maintained. When they disregard the sanctity of life by murder and strife, she becomes as furious as a protective mother.

Blessings

Minor: “Green Thumb”

Deed: Freely gave away a surplus of crops and livestock to help feed the misfortunate, all the while making sure they know Chauntea is to thank.

Effect: Once per Short Rest, you may revitalize wilted dead plants to their former glory. They will return to the zenith of its lifespan; a rose regains its petals, a tree regrows its leaves, a patch of grass turns back to green, etc. This can be either spread over 10 square feet of a small plantlife (such as wheat), or be focused on a single large plant (such as an apple tree). This ability does not keep the plant alive against its harmful environment, and it will die again if not properly cared for.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never leave a child starving if you have any food to give.

Major: “Cornucopia”

Deed: Killed an evil chaotic creature that was destroying arable land and murdering innocents, and then fully buried the creature in a grove sanctified by Chauntea.

Effect: Once per lunar cycle (30 days), you may bless an area the size of 2 square miles (or 1,250 acres) to become incredibly fertile land. No matter if it is desertland, swampland, or tundra, a large bounty of crops will grow from these lands. It should be able to feed a small village of about 250 people for the season.

-Duration: 1 year

-Triggers: X

-Bans: If you participate in a battle or war, you must first make sure that there is a safe haven for the innocents. Simply being told there is one is not enough. You must see it for yourself.

Legendary: “Child of the Soil”

Deed: Fully removed an ancient magical pestilence of the goddess Talona’s making from a cursed kingdom or farmland.

Effect: You no longer need to consume food or water, breathe air, or even have sunlight exposure. Your connection to Chauntea is enough to sustain you indefinitely.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: If you do willingly eat, the food must be picked fresh from the land. It cannot be cooked, stored, or prepared with preservatives. Consumption of Magical Items is the only exception.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Goodberry (LV.1 Transmutation, SRD)

Major: Transport via Plants (LV.6 Conjuration, SRD)

Legendary: Regenerate (LV.7 Transmutation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Fermented Belly”

Offense: Disrupted a country village’s harvest festival and was cruel to the locals.

Effect: Your Movement Speed is reduced by 5ft, and you roll at Disadvantage for Dexterity Saving Throws.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 10 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Lion (CR: 1, SRD)

Major: “Famished”

Offense: Burned a field of crops with the sole purpose of making people suffer from starvation.

Effect: You suffer everyday from a level of Exhaustion until after you consume three times the required amount of daily rations. These levels of Exhaustion can stack.

-Duration: 1 Year

-Triggers: Upon waking up from a Long Rest.

-Warding: 16 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Earth Elemental Myrmidon (CR: 7, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Withered Fruit”

Offense: Salted the soil or did something else to make farmland and/or wildland under Chauntea’s protection permanently infertile.

Effect: Your character is infertile, meaning they cannot sire or birth a child of their own.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 19 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Archdruid (CR: 12, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Cyric, God of Lies

Cyric believes that a lie is a possible truth that has not yet come to be. In that manner, all of his lies have purpose. He is indeed quite insane, and his megalomania is only outdone by his incredible paranoia. He does still maintain a religious following among the mortals, and their goals are primarily to ensure chaos without ever causing the need for war. The idea of society pulling itself apart is a special kind of joy for Cyric. He lashes out with great vengeance at those who reveal his lies, because deep down, he fears the power of such individuals.

Blessings

Minor: “Fibber’s Lips”

Deed: Influenced someone to kill their friend because of a lie you told.

Effect: Your next attempt to lie will be given Advantage on a Deception Check.

-Duration: Until your next Short or Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: “Convincing Liar”

Deed: You managed to manipulate a person so much that they abandoned their god worship, and they became a Cyricist who later destroyed a church of the god they once worshiped.

Effect: You may cast the spell “Major Illusion” (using Charisma as your Spell Modifier if you are not a spellcaster) once per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never reveal that your Illusions made from this Blessing are indeed false until they are dismissed or fallen.

Legendary: “Truth Bender”

Deed: Tricked the devout followers of either Mask, Mystra, Kelemvor, or Bane in a major city to completely execute members of one the others’ followers and then yourself killed the survivors.

Effect: If someone tries to use Insight against you to determine if you are lying, and if that individual’s Charisma Modifier is less than yours, they automatically fail.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever someone tries to detect your lies.

-Bans: You must never in any way give Cyric reason to suspect you are plotting against him or are trying to become a god yourself.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Crown of Madness (LV. 2 Enchantment, SRD)

Major: Mass Suggestion (LV.6 Enchantment, SRD)

Legendary: Mirage Arcane (LV.7 Illusion, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Trusting Heart”

Offense: Revealed the lies of a dead Cyricist and helped give closure to the victims.

Effect: The next lie you hear will be absolutely convincing. Consider this a passive Botch on an Insight Check. You can be convinced by your companions that the lie was indeed false, but only if you succeed on making an Insight Check as if you were being allowed to roll it in the first place.

-Duration: Until the next dawn.

-Triggers: When someone next lies to you.

-Warding: 10 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Specter (CR: 1, SRD)

Major: “Ignored Omens”

Offense: Prevented a city from tearing itself apart by brokering peace talks and allowing people to realize what lies they had been told secretly by Cyricists.

Effect: You are given a vision of a Cyricist’s great lie that will harm many people. However, whenever you try to communicate it, no one will believe you. You naturally Botch every Persuasion Check when you try to convey the vision, pushing people away from naturally discovering it themselves.

-Duration: Until the vision comes to pass.

-Triggers: When you try to tell someone of the vision.

-Warding: 15 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Deathlock Mastermind (CR: 8, Mordenkainen’s Tome of Foes)

Legendary: “Ear Whispers”

Offense: Stealing one of Cyric’s prized treasures from his throne room in Hades.

Effect: Cyric has taken a special hatred of you, and you can occasionally hear him whisper in your ear. On the night of the new moon’s zenith (once every lunar cycle; 30 days), you must make a Wisdom Check at DC 20. If you fail, you completely believe one of Cyric’s great lies to you. You cannot be convinced otherwise, no matter how outlandish the lie, until the lie proves itself to be false.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: During Long Rest on the New Moon zenith.

-Warding: DC 20, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Death Tyrant (CR: 14, Monster’s Manual)

Deneir, God of Writing

Deneir has the comforting aura of a favorite old schoolmaster, and his overworked mind simulates that of a fading old man's. He is entrusted by Oghma to search for the Metatext, a document sprinkled throughout the universe, and the task keeps his focus split in two. He appreciates all written documents like they're treasures, and he is fond of those with a writer's skill. He is a favorite of peace-loving gods, and his scholarly nature benefits all those with a hungry mind. His only moments of rage are for those who actively destroy the written word.

Blessings

Minor: "Writer's Luck"

Deed: You saved ordinary books from destruction, even knowing that they held no magical benefit to you.

Effect: The next time you find yourself in need of calligrapher's supplies, one will magically appear before you. At that time, if you are not already proficient, you gain Proficiency with calligrapher's supplies.

-Duration: The Proficiency is permanent, but the supplies only appear once.

-Triggers: When in need of calligrapher's supplies.

-Bans: Selling the calligrapher's kit without ever using it.

Major: “Ring of Truth”

Deed: Prevented the distortion of truth or destruction of history by an evil-aligned god. This must be against the efforts of the god directly and not their minions.

Effect: You may cast the Zone of Truth Spell once per Long Rest without expending a Spell Slot.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Do not dispel this Blessing so that others around you may lie unabated.

Legendary: “Book Loan”

Deed: Accepting and completing a quest to retrieve a piece of the Metatext hidden in a highly guarded location.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you can call forth a magical copy of any book contained in the Library of Deneir or any other library dedicated to him.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Actively calling out the title of the desired book.

-Bans: You may never destroy a book, scroll, letter, or parchment for any reason.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Identify (LV.1 Divination, SRD)

Major: Legend Lore (LV.5 Divination, SRD)

Legendary: Symbol (LV.7 Abjuration, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Unfocused Eyes”

Offense: You burned a pile of books because you believed their information was blasphemous.

Effect: You are unable to read the written word.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 15 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Clockwork Iron Cobra (CR: 4, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Major: “Lost for Words”

Offense: You lied about someone’s words (spoken or written) when translating to another person, and your lies sparked a conflict between two major forces.

Effect: You no longer can speak or write one of your known Languages. You cannot learn the language later, and you cannot understand it even with magical assistance.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 14 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Young Brass Dragon (CR: 10, SRD)

Legendary: “Cognitive Backlash”

Offense: You destroyed a piece of the written word, knowing that it contained a part of the Metatext.

Effect: You cannot read any written word, and you can only speak one Language.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 17 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Archmage (CR: 12, SRD)

Eldath, Goddess of Peace

Above all, Eldath strives for peace. The pains of violence wrack her entity with sorrow, and her only relief is when amends are made and weapons are destroyed. She is not proactively striving for peace, for she believes that it can't be forced on anyone. She waits patiently for mortals to want it. When they do, she accepts them with open arms and puts them on a path of healing and understanding. She does not actively harm others, and even given the reason for self-defense, she would rather flee.

Blessings

Minor: "Inner Peace"

Deed: Found an abandoned small shrine that was dedicated to peace and rebuilt it to its former glory.

Effect: Roll your Wisdom Saving Throws with Advantage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: “Thankful Smile”

Deed: Saved followers of Eldath from certain death by marauders through peaceful deliberation.

Effect: You may take a Bonus Action to cast “Lesser Restoration”, using Wisdom as your Spell Modifier. You do not have to use Somatic or Verbal components to cast.

-Duration: Once per Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not, of your own free will, outright slander your opponents to incite your allies to rage.

Legendary: “Walking the Path”

Deed: You broke a Legendary Magical Weapon, without ever using it, so that it could no longer cause anyone harm.

Effect: You are immune from bludgeoning, piercing, and slashing non-magical damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Whenever someone tries to harm you with bludgeoning, piercing, or slashing non-magical damage, your next Action must be used on a Persuasion Check to sway your attacker to abandon their attack.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Calm Emotions (LV.2 Enchantment, SRD)

Major: Commune (LV.5 Divination, SRD)

Legendary: Holy Aura (LV.8 Abjuration, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “A Moment”

Offense: Attacked a defenseless follower of Eldath for selfish or anger-related reasons.

Effect: Whenever you attack a devout follower of Eldath, you must succeed in a Wisdom Save at DC 13. Failure means you either choose another target or must flee at full speed until your next turn.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Attacking a defenseless follower of Eldath.

-Warding: 13 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: X

Major: “Broken Will”

Offense: You killed a peaceful protestor who opposed your evil or aggressive actions, knowing that the protestor would not prevent you from killing them.

Effect: Your nemesis (or a mortal whom you hate the most) is no longer important to you. You no longer bore any ill will towards the individual, even if given convincing reasons to do so. You will not attack the individual, unless it is in self-defense, and your actions will always be non-lethal.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: X

Legendary: “Catharsis”

Offense: You murdered a Good-Aligned demigod or similar divine being in a quest to attain your vengeance, for whatever reason that might be. The consequences of your actions mean that hundreds or more are doomed to die.

Effect: Your alignment changes from either Evil or Neutral to Good-Aligned. Already Good-Aligned beings become Good-Neutral. Good-Neutral characters retain their Alignment, even if their actions would suggest a change.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: X

Gond, God of Craft

Gond is a crafter, an artist, a metallurgist, a mechanist, and so much more. He blesses the mortals with his innovation and his forged gifts, and whatever they may do with them is none of his concern; only the creation of a newer and better tool is. When mortals ask for his blessings, he does not necessarily concern himself with if what they are asking will actually help. To Gond, the invention matters more than its purpose. The most vile act in his mind is destroying such an invention, whether by misuse, intention, or neglect.

Blessings

Minor: “Brazen Hands”

Deed: Saved an ancient broken relic, armor, or weapon and paid for its reconstruction by a distinguished metal worker.

Effect: Gain Proficiency with Smith’s Tools.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never let your primary tools rust from neglect.

Major: “Forger’s Bond”

Deed: Discovered ancient text which when read by studious engineers, they revealed plans to create a wondrous machination. You then funded or aided such an endeavor until the item’s construction was completed.

Effect: You may choose one Magical Item that you have Attuned to. You can cast the Scrying spell once per Long Rest upon the item, which immediately succeeds. Even if this item is left, lost, or stolen, (and you lose your Attunement) this ability continues to function until you decide to move this ability to another magical item you’re Attuned to.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not forever abandon the Magical Item you have used with this Blessing. If you leave it behind someplace for the sole purpose of scrying upon others, you must retrieve it within three days.

Legendary: “Divine Loan”

Deed: You are directly responsible for creating a new machination of which the world has never seen and will forever change it. Some good examples would be firearms, steam-powered engines, the printing press, etc.

Effect: You are allowed to wield or use a Wondrous Legendary item from Gond’s personal vault. Alternatively, Gond may create a new one just for you.

-Duration: Until your soul leaves the mortal plane.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: No matter the reason, you can never stop the spread of your invention throughout all of civilization.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Grease (LV.1 Conjuration, SRD)

Major: Summon Construct (LV.4 Conjuration, Tasha’s Cauldron of Everything)

Legendary: Fire Storm (LV.7 Evocation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Blacksmith’s Ire”

Offense: You fought a devout worshiper of Gond and then stole whatever inventory you wanted from their shop.

Effect: All worshipers of Gond know that you are not to be trusted, and all your Charisma-based rolls against them are at Disadvantage.

-Duration: Three Years

-Triggers: Encountering a worshiper of Gond.

-Warding: 11 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Animated Armor (CR: 1, SRD)

Major: “Heavy Burden”

Offense: You destroyed or irrevocably broke a magical weapon or new mechanical creation by accident.

Effect: Whatever the type of weapon you destroyed, you now are at Disadvantage using any type of that weapon. If it was a mechanical creation, you are at Disadvantage when rolling Intelligence-based rolls for using any complex machine. Botches on these rolls never result in the destruction of the items.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever you try to wield the weapon type or mechanical creation.

-Warding: 15 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Shield Guardian (CR: 7, SRD)

Legendary: “Gond’s Wrath”

Offense: You are responsible for the destruction of one of Gond’s prototypes before he was able to test it.

Effect: Any weapon, item, or armor forged from metals causes you 1 Fire Damage per Turn of direct contact. Any natural or magical ability to prevent this Fire damage fails. The metal glows bright hot as if it is in a furnace.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Touching forged metal.

-Warding: 18 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Retriever (DC: 14, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Helm, God of Protection

Helm is the manifestation of guarding others. Not everyone is strong enough to protect themselves, and even more vulnerable are laws of gods and mortals, for they have no form to defend themselves. Good and Evil cannot matter for a true guardian, for these individuals must carry out evil acts to protect what is good. Helm carries this heavy burden in solitude, as he expects others to do. Those who uphold this sacred duty receive his strength of will to do what must be done. His true hatred is reserved for those who betray their sworn oaths.

Blessings

Minor: “Sentry’s Watch”

Deed: Made a wise decision that resulted in foiling the plans of assassins paid to kill who you were sworn to protect.

Effect: Add +5 to your Passive Perception.

-Duration: 24 hours after being triggered.

-Triggers: Choosing to stand on guard.

-Bans: X

Major: “The Sacrifice”

Deed: You swore to Helm within his church to one of his devout followers that you would protect your ward until they release you of your oath.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, if your ward (the person you’re protecting) receives a mortal blow, you can instead redirect all the damage from that Attack to yourself instead.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When your ward is given enough damage to kill them.

-Bans: Never abandon your ward, even if this means certain death.

Legendary: “Last Breath”

Deed: Received a mortal blow while defending the laws you swore to abide and protect, and this very act helped defeat an opponent of CR 15 or higher. You had to have been forced to make Death Saving Rolls, which you recovered from without aid of magic or abilities.

Effect: On a successful Melee Attack, you can choose to sacrifice all but one Hit Point and deal that amount in Magical Damage against the struck foe. This ability can be used once per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: After a successful Melee Attack.

-Bans: You can never commit any of the highest offenses of the law system you swore to uphold and protect (1st degree crimes, 7 deadly sins, unforgivable atrocities, etc.) .

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: Shield (LV.1 Abjuration, SRD)

Major: Banishing Smite (LV.5 Abjuration, Player’s Handbook)

Legendary: Invulnerability (LV.9 Abjuration, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Curses

Minor: “Liar’s Plight”

Offense: Lying to uphold an oath to Helm or any oath while within one of his holy sites.

Effect: You cannot speak or utter a sound.

-Duration: Until after a Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Knight (CR: 3, SRD)

Major: “Backstabber”

Offense: Killed your Helm-sworn ward in an attempt to save yourself.

Effect: Any attempt for you to use Deception, Persuasion, and Stealth is at Disadvantage.

-Duration: Until your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Stone Golem (CR: 10, SRD)

Legendary: “Malefactor”

Offense: You abandoned your devotion to the law and your obligations as a guardian. Your choices led to the complete corruption of a Neutral-Lawful government, which in turn led to them abandoning the law and embracing chaos.

Effect: Your name and history, along with your misdeeds, are magically known to all devout followers of Helm. You are a pariah to anyone who owes allegiance to the followers of Helm, and your death would bring great honor to your executioner.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Adult Bronze Dragon (CR: 15, SRD)

Ilmater, God of Endurance

A god for those who suffer. A god for those who are in pain. A god for those who need a martyr. Illmater is such a god. He represents a hope for those without hope, and there are many who fit that description. For those who strive to gain his favor, they only need to emulate his actions and follow his words. They must sacrifice themselves for the good of others, even if it means nothing of them is left. Illmater's compassion and patience is great, but when a line is crossed, he has the fury of a madman with nothing to lose.

Blessings

Minor: "Stigmata"

Deed: Out of the kindness of your heart, and not for the favor of Illmater, you helped heal someone who was in pain. They must not be an adventurer and had no obvious way in which to help themselves.

Effect: You may lend your Hit Point Dice to an ally to be used on a Short Rest. However, whatever amount of Hit Points they receive from it, you take that much Slashing Damage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Target creature must be below full health.

-Bans: You must not strike an innocent beggar.

Major: “Stranger’s Compassion”

Deed: In an act of heroism, you risked your life to protect the lives of others. This act must have honestly jeopardized your life (certainly killing you if you failed a single roll), and those saved were either commoners or some other level of poverty-stricken.

Effect: You can transfer a Status Effect or Curse from an Ally to yourself. You can only do this with one Status or Curse at a time, or until you are cured of it.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Target must have a Status Effect or a Curse.

-Bans: You can never inflict a Status Effect or Curse on another humanoid, unless they attack you (not your allies) first.

Legendary: “Higher Bond”

Deed: You drastically improved the quality of life for a whole city. This can be done in any number of ways, but the end result is that the commoners yearly mortality rates dropped by at least 50%. You also took no payment for this act, other than food, shelter, and possibly handmade trinkets.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you can choose to take no Action during combat. The next successful attack against you deals no damage, nor do any subsequent attacks from your attacker until the beginning of your next turn.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: A successful attack upon you.

-Bans: You may never kill a former opponent who is honest about their repentance for their evil ways.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Constitution)

Minor: Beacon of Hope (LV.3 Abjuration, SRD)

Major: Aura of Life (LV.4 Abjuration, Player’s Handbook)

Legendary: Mass Heal (LV.9 Evocation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Unforgettable Face”

Offense: You killed an innocent commoner in cold blood with no provocation, nor for any material or magical benefit, nor for the appeasement of a god. The murder was the purpose in itself.

Effect: All the faces of humanoids you’re meeting for the first time have the same face as the innocent commoner you murdered.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Whenever you’re meeting a humanoid for the first time.

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Unicorn (DC: 5, SRD)

Major: “Tortured Flesh”

Offense: You tortured a follower of Illmater to death and failed to get the information you attempted to require. The follower must have had the desired information and was able to keep it from you.

Effect: For every point of damage you cause another humanoid outside of combat, you receive 1d4 slashing damage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: As soon as the follower dies.

-Warding: 14 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Abjurer Wizard (DC: 9, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Haunting Regret”

Offense: You personally murdered over 10 children/infants in one night for your own evil or selfish purposes. This was not done by the orders of another, nor on behalf of an evil god. It was your choice and your action taken.

Effect: During each Long Rest, you must make a Wisdom Saving Throw at DC 10. If you fail, you are haunted by your evil actions, and you do not get the benefits of a Long Rest and acquire a level of Exhaustion. If you succeed even once on this roll, all previous levels of accumulated Exhaustion (due to this Curse) are removed.

-Duration: For ten years.

-Triggers: Beginning a Long Rest.

-Warding: 20, Wisdom

-Reconciler: The Angry (CR: 13, Mordenkainen’s Tome of Foes)

Kelemvor, God of the Dead

As with the Living, the Dead must also be in balance with the universe. Once a mortal passes on, it is the responsibility of Kelemvor to make sure that soul makes it to its destination. The destination does not matter, so long as it is completed and never stalled or reversed. To Kelemvor, the undead are unnatural and tip the balance of the cosmic powers. It is his duty, as well as his followers, to exterminate undeath wherever it may exist. Those who further open this dark wound upon the material plane have earned the fury of Kelemvor, and once they too pass into death, this dark judge will carry out a severe punishment.

Blessings

Minor: “Pulse of Light”

Deed: After killing a member of the undead, you made sure to put them back into their original resting place and did what you could to restore it.

Effect: You gain an additional use of Turn/Destroy Undead. If you do not have the ability to use this, you can gift it to someone who can.

-Duration: Permanent until used.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Do not intentionally desecrate a corpse’s remains.

Major: “Cold Fury”

Deed: You helped a powerful undead spirit find peace and naturally fade away back into death forever.

Effect: When you successfully attack an undead creature with a Melee Attack, you can add an additional 1d6 of Radiant Damage. This can only be used on your first successful attack once.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Once per turn on a successful Melee Attack against undead.

-Bans: Never steal from a coffin or a cadaver. This does not apply to anything that was outside of the coffin or not touching the remains.

Legendary: “The Reaper’s Favor”

Deed: You destroyed a lich’s phylactery before killing its physical form.

Effect: You have Resistance to Necrotic Damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Do not accept any deal from a lich that would allow it to continue to exist.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: Protection from Evil and Good (LV.1 Abjuration, SRD)

Major: Dispel Evil and Good (LV.5 Abjuration, SRD)

Legendary: Divine Word (LV.7 Evocation; SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Forgetful Master”

Offense: You casted Animate Dead and allowed the undead servant to escape of its own will, because you were unwilling to cast the spell again and didn’t care to kill the creature.

Effect: On your next fight against undead creatures, all of those creatures with an Intelligence less than 4 will attack you first.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Next fight with undead creatures.

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Banshee (DC: 4, BR)

Major: "Grave Foot"

Offense: Sacrificed a living mortal at the behest of an undead creature, which also sacrificed their soul.

Effect: The next time you roll for Death Saving Throws, you automatically fail your first roll. You must roll this throw anyway, and if it is a natural one, you die.

-Duration: Permanent, until it is activated.

-Triggers: Making a Death Saving Throw.

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Sword Wraith Commander (DC: 8, Mordenkainen's Tome of Foes)

Legendary: "Marked for Death"

Offense: Willingly and eagerly learned how to start the process of becoming a lich and then started preparing to do so.

Effect: Any effect that would apply to the undead now also applies to you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 17 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Tempest Spirit (DC: 15, Glory of the Giants)

Lathander, God of Birth and Renewal

With new life and a new dawn, there is hope, so say the Morninglord known as Lathander. He cherishes life and opportunities, and he holds a special fiery hatred for those who cling to old evil ways. His followers all know of his hatred for the undead, and they do what they can to remove the chains of the old and let loose the bright spirits of the future. Those who try to stifle Lathander's attempts towards a better future, he knows who they are and will erase them in due time.

Blessings

Minor: "Light Sliver"

Deed: You let the light of the sun fall down upon a cursed temple/castle that had been hidden for centuries or longer.

Effect: You now know and can cast the Light Cantrip, using your Charisma as your Spellcasting Modifier.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never say a negative word about the rise of dawn.

Major: "Hero's Heart"

Deed: You stayed behind to fight evil as your allies fled to live another day. Somehow, you were able to survive, whether by luck or through sheer perseverance.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you can call upon the light of Lathander and gain 20 Temporary HP. These disappear after the end of combat.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: When Hero's Heart is active, you may not flee combat.

Legendary: "Burst of Brilliance"

Deed: Dealt the killing blow of an undead Monster that was over a CR of 20, the damage dealt had Radiant Damage, and you did this after rising from having rolled at least one Death Saving Throw.

Effect: You shine brightly with the light of the sun (affecting any creatures with a vulnerability or weakness to such), and any undead creatures making an attack against you do so at Disadvantage. All your Melee Attacks deal an additional 1d6 Radiant Damage. You may activate this ability once per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never raise another god's importance or wishes above Lathander's.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Strength)

Minor: Searing Smite (LV.1 Evocation, SRD)

Major: Fire Shield (LV.4 Evocation, SRD)

Legendary: Sunburst (LV.8 Evocation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Sun's Glare"

Offense: Created a source of magical darkness within a temple of Lathander.

Effect: Your sight-based Perception rolls are at Disadvantage when you are in sunlight, as it is too bright for you to see.

-Duration: Until dusk.

-Triggers: At the beginning of next dawn.

-Warding: 11 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Pegasus (LV.2, SRD)

Major: “Abandoned”

Offense: Handing over the soul of a Lathandar loyalist or a child over to an undead creature, knowing that the soul will be utterly destroyed.

Effect: You take no physical pleasure from anything anymore. Not from food, smell, warmth, or companionship. The spirit of life has truly left you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Deva (LV.10, SRD)

Legendary: “Expelled”

Offense: Slaughtering an entire village wholly dedicated to Lathander at night, leaving no survivors.

Effect: You take 5 Radiant Damage when you start your turn in sunlight. This cannot be prevented by any means.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever in sunlight.

-Warding: 17 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Ki-Rin (CR:12, Volo’s Guide to Monsters)

Leira, Goddess of Illusion

Due to her nature as a divine illusionist, there are not many truths known about Leira. She is definitely known to lie in all things, especially when a lie is more preferable than the truth. An extension of a lie is an illusion, and she expects her few worshipers to be proficient in weaving such things. She loves to award those whose lies have grand reactions in the material plane, and she has a sharp hatred for those who quest for truths without care of the outcomes. She rarely makes her presence known, as a lie is easier to tell when the source cannot be found.

Blessings

Minor: “Silver Tongue”

Deed: Spread a lie that was so convincing that a humanoid killed one of their immediate family members for it.

Effect: You gain Proficiency in Deception. If you already have Proficiency, your score increases by +2.

-Duration: A phase of the moon (30 days).

-Triggers: Whenever using Deception.

-Bans: You can never reveal one of your lies as a falsehood.

Major: "A Thousand Faces"

Deed: You prevented your true identity from being revealed to your fellow allies by killing an old friend or family member.

Effect: You gain the Changeling Racial ability of Shapechanger.

-Duration: A phase of the moon (30 days).

-Triggers: X

-Bans: No one can find the body.

Legendary: "True Actor"

Deed: Created an illusionary situation that was embraced and believed in by thousands. The memory of the event is so beloved that anyone trying to reveal the truth will be seen as hostile and will eventually be arrested.

Effect: You may never roll below a 15 on a Deception Check, even if you roll a 1.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: When your Deception Check is lower than 15.

-Bans: Do not unveil any of the lies spun by Leira herself.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Major Image (LV.3 Illusion, SRD)

Major: Programmed Illusion (LV.6 Illusion, SRD)

Legendary: Project Image (LV.7 Illusion, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Impulse Control"

Offense: You debunked a tall tale being told as a truthful story for everyone's enjoyment.

Effect: In a moment when it matters most, you will immediately reveal your spoken lie as a falsehood.

-Duration: Until next dawn.

-Triggers: When you successfully roll Deception to avoid combat.

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Green Hag (LV.3, SRD)

Major: "Ignored Truthspeaker"

Offense: Through much perseverance and investigation, you discovered a truth that has been obscured by the Mistwalkers for over a decade.

Effect: No matter how reasonable this truth is, you must roll Persuasion at Disadvantage against a DC of 15 for anyone to believe you.

-Duration: A phase of the moon (30 days).

-Triggers: When you communicate this truth.

-Warding: 15 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Aboleth (LV.10, SRD)

Legendary: “Lost Identity”

Offense: You were able to present some sort of proof that the goddess Leira does indeed still exist and is still manipulating mortals. This sort of proof must be so profound that even a deity would believe it.

Effect: Your history unravels in your mind, and you no longer believe you are who you actually are. You do not immediately have an idea of who you might be, but you “know” your life up to this point has been a lie. Any piece of evidence to prove you actually are who you are is immediately distrusted as another lie of Leira. You abandon your history, name, family, and friends as extensions of this lie.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: Whenever presented with your true identity.

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Beholder (LV.13, Monster Manual)

Lliira, Goddess of Joy

Most mortals believe that Lliira is pure chaos and lacks any true sense of responsibility, but they also rely upon her to help make their lives have purpose. It is unfortunate that they don't connect this huge responsibility to the goddess, but she spreads joy regardless of how she is seen. Those mortals who realize what a burden it is to make others happy may follow in her footsteps and be truly blessed more than any magical ability may allow. On the other hand, there are those who have attempted to cut themselves off from joy, and when they rob it of others, they quickly find out that there is always more joy to lose.

Blessings

Minor: "Child's Laughter"

Deed: You helped someone truly broken by the world to still find something funny enough to laugh at.

Effect: Your very presence lightens the mood of any gathering, whether it be a party, town hall meeting, or even a business meeting. There is no immediate system effect, but the general mood definitely improves.

-Duration: Until the next morning.

-Triggers: After you make a positive toast to the gathering.

-Bans: Do not roll a natural 1 on a Persuasion roll.

Major: “Root of Joy”

Deed: You helped an artistic individual push past their ‘block’ and create a legendary work of art.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you can give another Player’s Character Advantage when they are making a Performance Check or using a Kit they have Proficiency in.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never destroy a genuinely good piece of art without good cause.

Legendary: “Life of a Party”

Deed: You protected a small festival from being ruined by a marauding war party, natural disaster, or magical catastrophe. Those enjoying the festival were never aware of the dangers, and so their joy was never disturbed.

Effect: Once a month (30 days), you can call upon the Goddess of Joy to conjure food, drink, and musical instruments enough to help a small village to celebrate for one night. At the rise of dawn, anything unused as well as the musical instruments disappear.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Enough people to consist of a village’s worth.

-Bans: Whenever you are a part of any celebration, you must push for Lliira to receive her worship as well.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Calm Emotions (LV.2 Enchantment, SRD)

Major: Otto’s Irresistible Dance (LV.6 Enchantment, SRD)

Legendary: Glibness (LV.8 Transmutation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Bad Joke”

Offense: You heckled a performer so much that they chose not to continue, even though everyone else was enjoying them.

Effect: You suffer terrible dreams of being heckled onstage as you did to the performer. You gain a level of Exhaustion.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: As you begin your next Long Rest.

-Warding: 11 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Quickling (CR:2, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Major: "Sullen Mood"

Offense: You purposefully ruined a party or celebration that was in honor of Lliira, whereas everyone was enjoying themselves before.

Effect: Joy has left your soul for the night, and your body feels the despair like a poison. You do not regain your HP after a Long Rest.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: As you begin your next Long Rest.

-Warding: 14 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Winter Eladrin (CR:10, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: "Gray Soul"

Offense: You outright murdered practitioners of a purely innocent and joyous Midsummer's Night Festival (or similar celebration). They had no gold or items to offer you, but you chose to end their lives in a most horrid way, possibly involving torture.

Effect: Lliira has abandoned you. All the joy you found in life is gone. Your Alignment changes to True Neutral, and you are incapable of creating anything artistic, causing you to automatically fail at Performance Checks and Kit-based rolls that involve artistry.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 19 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Hungry Sorrowsworn (DC: 11, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Loviatar, Goddess of Pain

Pain can be a pathway to salvation, once it is embraced as a teacher rather than something to be suffered. Loviatar demands pain from her followers, her enemies, and everything in between. She cares about nothing else, and she demands that her sadistic desire be sated. Those who follow her usually do so as a means of embracing the pains of their lives, feeling like there is no other escape from them. And those who wish to undo Loviatar's lessons, they gain her attention and become her next for her harsh lessons.

Blessings

Minor: "Bruised"

Deed: You ritualistically harmed yourself down to less HP than what a full HP Die would be. For example: If your HP die is 1d8, then you'd have to harm yourself down to less than 8HP remaining. This must be done while praying to Loviatar.

Effect: The next time your HP is lowered to less than one full HP Die would be, you gain +2 to your Strength and all your Saving Throws until you regain HP above that level.

-Duration: Permanent until used one time.

-Triggers: When you go below the HP limit.

-Bans: X

Major: “Bleeding”

Deed: You personally orchestrated the administration of pain upon many Loviatans for over twelve hours. Over ten individuals were brought to the brink of death, only to rise again with their wounds as homage to their goddess.

Effect: Upon activating this ability as an Action, all targets within 60 ft of you who are below their Max HP must make a Constitution Check at DC 15 or else their next attacks are with Disadvantage, due to their bodies being wracked by agonizing pain.

-Duration: Permanent until used one time.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never show compassion to one feeling pain.

Legendary: “Dying”

Deed: While praying to Loviatar, you willingly damaged yourself down to Death Saving Throws, and you returned without aid of magic or an ability.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, if you lose all your HP, you do not have to make Death Saving Throws. Instead, you are immediately brought back to life and may roll a single HP Die to regain that much HP. You do not lose a turn for this ability.

-Duration: Permanent until used one time.

-Triggers: When you are brought down to 0 HP.

-Bans: Never deny a willing subject the chance to experience pain.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Constitution)

Minor: Inflict Wounds (LV.1 Necromancy, SRD)

Major: Harm (LV.6 Necromancy, SRD)

Legendary: Weird (LV.9 Illusion, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Whip”

Offense: Destroyed a collection of pain-causing utensils to keep them from being used by anyone ever again.

Effect: The next time you are in combat with a Loviatan, every time you receive damage from them, you receive an additional 1d4 Slashing Damage. It is as if you are being whipped by an invisible attacker.

-Duration: Permanent until activated.

-Triggers: Being attacked by a Loviatan.

-Warding: 12 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Barbed Devil (CR: 5, SRD)

Major: "Leather"

Offense: You interrupted a pain-ritual between a Loviatan and was able to convince the initiate to abandon Loviatar.

Effect: The next time you are in combat with a Loviatan, you must make a Constitution Save at DC 16. If you fail, both of your arms are bound behind you, as if they are buckled together. This lasts until the end of combat.

-Duration: Permanent until activated.

-Triggers: Being attacked by a Loviatan.

-Warding: 16 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Chain Devil (CR: 8, SRD)

Legendary: "Chain"

Offense: You dismantled a church of Loviatar, and then you converted the followers to the teachings of Illmater.

Effect: From every source of damage you receive in combat, you receive an additional 1d4 Bludgeoning Damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever you receive combat damage.

-Warding: 19 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Erinyes (CR: 12, SRD)

Malar, God of the Hunt

Malar extends his favor to any hunter of beasts and humanoids. He is the predator unbound, and he is consumed with the goal of becoming a perfect killer. Those hunters who follow in his footsteps must embrace their bestial side and wield their ferocity as a weapon against the wilderness. Though many cultures view him as part of the natural order, he would destroy that balance if given a chance. He does hold a few laws dear, and what he hates most is the intentional weakening of prey and the extermination of predators.

Blessings

Minor: “Track the Scent”

Deed: You tracked down and killed a beast that evaded you for over a month. When you did kill it, you did so with a Melee weapon and ritualistically smeared its blood on your face.

Effect: You now have Proficiency when trying to track a beast by smell.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: "Predator Mind"

Deed: You have contracted a form of lycanthropy and refused to cure it. Instead, you prayed to Malar and thanked him for the change.

Effect: Your alignment does not change to Chaotic Evil due to your lycanthropy.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Your lycanthropy can never be removed, and you must never deny the instinctual change to your bestial form when triggered.

Legendary: "Trophy Bearer"

Deed: You killed a Beast, Dragon, Monstrosity, or Aberration of CR 15 that was blessed by a god, and you did so alone.

Effect: You can pick one of the unique abilities of the killed creature and adopt it as your own, with its functions now relying upon your stats and Spell Save DC (if this applies).

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You can never sleep anywhere but the untamed wilds.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Dexterity)

Minor: Longstrider (LV.1 Transmutation, SRD)

Major: Polymorph (LV.4 Transmutation, SRD)

Legendary: Shapechange (LV.9 Transmutation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Guilty Twitch"

Offense: You hunted and killed a wild beast, knowing that it was pregnant.

Effect: Next time you attack a Beast with a Melee Attack, you do so at Disadvantage.

-Duration: Permanent, but removed after first use.

-Triggers: Actively attacking a Beast with a Non-magical Attack.

-Warding: 11 DC, Strength

-Reconciler: Giant Eagle (CR: 1, SRD)

Major: "Beastial Shame"

Offense: Angry that another Hunter killed a creature you had been hunting, you hired others to kill that individual, knowing that you would not survive such an attack.

Effect: You have Disadvantage when trying to use Animal Handling upon a predator.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 14 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Tyrannosaurus Rex (DC:8, SRD)

Legendary: "Hunted"

Offense: You eradicated an entire species of predator-like creatures for no reason other than to protect your livestock.

Effect: Once a month, under the full moon, a Beast or Monstrosity Creature will attempt to hunt you down. It will be a predatory creature found naturally in your surroundings, and it will do all it can to kill you. Its CR will be between 5-15, depending on available creatures and DM's choice.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 17 DC, Strength

-Reconciler: Roc (CR: 11, SRD)

Mask, God of Thieves

Mask loves for his philosophy of ownership-through-theft to be practiced across all the realms. He has a history of great trickery and charades, but he feels his lessons are best learned among the mortals. Gods are less likely to change for anything, including himself, and so he focuses his attention on all others. He cherishes those with a natural knack for thievery, and he encourages them to continue their craft. He rarely gets angry, but he does love to teach cruel lessons to those who could learn to lose a few things.

Blessings

Minor: “Trick Pockets”

Deed: You stole an item whose rich owner kept boasting to everyone how ‘unstealable’ it was.

Effect: For an hour, you can hide a single item of inventory in a pocket dimension. It is undetectable in this state, and it appears back in your hand when the hour is completed.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never admit to stealing the item.

Major: “Assessor’s Eye”

Deed: You stole a Rare or Wondrous Item, but when you were accused of the theft, you claimed that the item was always yours to begin with. You were so convincing that you were declared the rightful owner by a judicial figure.

Effect: You are able to look at any Magical Item and determine if it is indeed Magical and its level of rarity.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never give the aforementioned item back to the person you stole it from.

Legendary: “Shadow Step”

Deed: You stole a Legendary Item, but put a forgery in its place. The forgery is so convincing that no one suspects it to be otherwise.

Effect: Whenever you are in complete darkness or shadows, you may roll your Stealth Checks at Advantage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When in shadows or darkness.

-Bans: The forgery you replaced the Legendary Item with can never be discovered to be fraudulent.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Dexterity)

Minor: Disguise Self (LV.1 Illusion, SRD)

Major: Mislead (LV.5 Illusion, SRD)

Legendary: Teleport (LV.7 Conjunction, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Loose Purse”

Offense: You falsely accused someone of stealing from you an amount that totalled less than 10GP, simply to have the person arrested because they annoyed you.

Effect: Anyone who tries to steal Gold Pieces from you may do so with Advantage.

-Duration: Until after a Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 11 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: Mimic (CR: 2, SRD)

Major: “Wealth of Humility”

Offense: You owned a Wondrous or Legendary Magic Item and had it locked away securely, making sure it would never be stolen. When the time came it was destined to be used, you refused to let it out of your vault.

Effect: Your most powerful Magic Item disappears from you and emerges in Mask’s domain of Shadow Keep.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: As soon as you finish your next Long Rest.

-Warding: 15 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: Chimera (CR: 6, SRD)

Legendary: “Unlucky Coin”

Offense: You were the ruler of a city, until you caused its downfall with high taxation and unproportional punishments for thievery. Whether it was sacked by an enemy’s army, stricken with a devastating disease, or wracked by unrelenting weather changes, the city fell to ruin and everyone abandoned it.

Effect: You can never hold more GP than 1. You can spend that 1 GP for anything, but the same coin will always return to you. If you collect more than 1GP, it will always disappear from you before you’re able to spend it.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever you acquire more than 1 GP.

-Warding: 20 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: Ultroloth (CR: 13, Monsters Manual)

Mielikki, Goddess of Forests

While she may not be as powerful as a divinity as most, she is attentive and caring for those who follow her. Unlike Silvanus of the untamed wilds, Mielikki focused more on the mortals who traveled through the forest. She helps them find their own place in the wilds; one which is in balance with the wilds rather than opposed to it. For those with a wanderlust and a wish to explore, Mielikki is there to give her guidance. For those who see the wilds as nothing more than resources to devour, her vengeance is swift and without mercy.

Blessings

Minor: “Wanderlust”

Deed: After asking Mielikki for guidance, you chose to enter an unfamiliar forest for the sole purpose of exploration.

Effect: You may add a 1d4 to all of your Survival Checks.

-Duration: Until after a Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not exit the forest.

Major: “Resourcefulness”

Deed: Even though you were hungry, you chose not to attack a beast that is obviously magical and favored by the gods, such as a unicorn.

Effect: You can cast the Cantrip Goodberry once per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: All of the berries you created must be consumed within 24 hours.

Legendary: “Listen to the Leaves”

Deed: Your actions directly prevented the utter destruction of an entire forest. The source of this devastation could have been from anything, but it was unsuccessful due to you.

Effect: You may cast the spell “Commune” as a ritual to specifically talk to Mielikki. You may do this once per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not knowingly serve Malar, Moander, Myrkul, Talona, or Talos for any reason.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: Conjure Animals (LV.3 Conjuraton, SRD)

Major: Commune with Nature (LV.5 Divination, SRD)

Legendary: Animal Shapes (LV.8 Transmutation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Turned Around”

Offense: You disgraced a sacred grove or tree hidden deep within an ancient forest.

Effect: You are at Disadvantage when trying to make a roll determining your location and which direction you need to take towards your destination.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 14 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Darkling Elder (CR:2, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Major: “Green Hex”

Offense: You used Necromancy upon the corpse of a Mielikki follower or Mielikki-blessed animal to make it rise and serve you.

Effect: All of your Necromancy Spells will be rolled at Disadvantage if you are in a forested terrain.

-Duration: One Month (30 days)

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 17 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Summer Eladrin (CR: 10, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Reclamation”

Offense: You are the cause of the complete destruction of a forested region. Whether by logging, magical carelessness, or pollution, the area will unlikely recover for centuries.

Effect: Wherever you rest, the plants will slowly try to regrow what you have taken away. Within a week of being in the same village, the weeds in the region will become insufferable and start to choke out the inhabitants and the natural crops. By the second week, those weeds have grown 10ft tall, and any weeds chopped down regrow within three days. If you stay within the same location for a month, the weeds start to combine and become small trees. Their encroaching root systems begin to destroy buildings and stone structures, and if anyone communes with the plants to ask why they are doing this, the plants will reveal your identity. Once you leave the area for over a week, the plants wither and die, and the land returns to normal.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Archdruid (CR: 12, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Milil, God of Poetry and Song

Milil wants nothing more than to help create beautiful art, spread good times, and to be the focus of everyone's attention. All musicians know they owe their craft to Milil, and they actively worship him through prayers and their works. Milil actively helps artists to find their own way through the world; especially those who know how to flatter him. He rarely gets angry, because it would spoil the mood of a good party. Instead, he will insult his foes in song, which will keep moods high while infuriating the offender.

Blessings

Minor: "Musician's Ears"

Deed: You helped inspire an artist to finish one of their greatest works of their lives. Without you, it would have been incomplete forever.

Effect: You gain Proficiency in a musical instrument of your choice.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: "Reciprocation"

Deed: You managed to lighten the dark moods of a village burdened with death and misery. You were so successful at this that an impromptu celebration took place, and even though the villagers knew they would most certainly die in the next few days, they managed to enjoy themselves thoroughly.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, when a Bard gives you an Inspiration Die, you can give your own Inspiration Die of 1d6 back to the Bard.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When given an Inspiration Die.

-Bans: You may never destroy any musical device.

Legendary: "End the Silence"

Deed: You defeated a Legendary Creature (CR: 15 or above) who outlawed any type of art to be created or enjoyed within its vast kingdom.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you may immediately end an effect that Silences your magical abilities. If this is an environmental or otherwise permanent effect, you can cast your magic within a minute unhindered before it returns.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must never force a band of musicians to end their performance early.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Charm Person (LV.1 Enchantment, SRD)

Major: Compulsion (LV.4 Enchantment, SRD)

Legendary: Power Word Stun (LV.8 Enchantment, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Tone Deaf"

Offense: You relentlessly heckled an artist or performer so much that they gave up their craft.

Effect: You may never learn to play any new Musical Instrument.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 13 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Quasit (CR: 1, SRD)

Major: “Imposter’s Tick”

Offense: You stole an artist’s life work, killed that individual, and then claimed the art was created by yourself. You gained great renown for your brilliance for such work, as well as good fortune.

Effect: If anyone asks you about any of your original artworks, you must make a Wisdom Saving Throw at DC 12. Failure means that you must say something offensive towards the individual or verbally degrade yourself.

-Duration: Permanent, unless you confess your actions.

-Triggers: When asked details about your artworks.

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Spring Eladrin (CR: 10, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Tale of Infamy”

Offense: You destroyed a Magical Item that was also a Musical Instrument. This specific item was created by Milil himself.

Effect: Milil has written a slanderous song about you. No matter where you go, be it even in a different dimension, any musician within a mile of you will automatically know the song. They will be able to sing it in any language and play it with any instrument. For those hearing the song for the first time, you are at Disadvantage on any Charisma-based Check on them and they have Advantage on their Charisma Saves against you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 18 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Morkoth (CR: 11, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Myrkul, God of Death

Myrkul realizes that his power can only increase as death itself increases its reach into the mortal planes. Though he does call himself a judge of the dead, he more so sees himself as their ruler. Most choose not to worship him, as he only truly considers the dead to be part of his army. Those who do walk a very dangerous path; one which Myrkul is waiting for them to fall down. As these followers spread death in his name, they are given favors. Those who disappoint him are turned into “better” undead servants.

Blessings

Minor: “Last Moment”

Deed: You killed a devout follower of Chauntea, Lathander, or Mielikki and then used their skull to create an altar to Myrkul.

Effect: Once per Short Rest, you can pick up the head or skull of a dead body and see the last six seconds of what they saw before dying.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You cannot ritualistically bury the head or skull used with this ability.

Major: "Touch of the Grave"

Deed: Killed over 100 mortals in one night and dedicated their mass grave to Myrkul.

Effect: Anytime you touch a creature or a creature touches you, they receive 1 Necrotic Damage. This includes any spell which requires skin-to-skin contact.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When touched by a creature.

-Bans: You must never speak of this Blessing as a regrettable Curse.

Legendary: "Eternal Unrest"

Deed: You slayed a Celestial Creature with a CR of 10 or higher, and then you resurrected its corpse and had it help you kill another Celestial Creature with a CR of 10 or higher; all done on the same night.

Effect: When you die, your character can return as any undead NPC with a CR of +4 to your Player Level. After the battle, your undead entity is transported to the Bone Castle within the Gray Wastes to better serve Myrkul.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: After True Death.

-Bans: Never abandon the sovereignty of Myrkul as your lord.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Animate Dead (LV.3 Necromancy, SRD)

Major: Blight (LV.4 Necromancy, SRD)

Legendary: Finger of Death (LV.7 Necromancy, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Face of Death"

Offense: You failed to kill an enemy of Myrkul, one which you swore to him that you would personally murder before sunrise.

Effect: Your face ages rapidly, and you look gaunt and very morbid. This has no mechanical effect, but other Myrkulytes will see your failure.

-Duration: One lunar phase (30 days).

-Triggers: x

-Warding: 11 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Revenant (CR: 5, Monster Manual)

Major: "Deterioration"

Offense: You did not prevail in protecting a hidden shrine to Myrkul, and in total there were over fifty undead servants destroyed.

Effect: You receive 1d4 Necrotic Damage at every Dusk.

-Duration: One year (364 days).

-Triggers: Every Dusk (or 24 hours).

-Warding: 14 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Sword Wraith Commander (CR: 8, Mordenkainen's Tome of Foes)

Legendary: “Soul Branded”

Offense: You invaded Bone Castle and helped an imprisoned soul, one punished by Myrkul himself, escape their bonds and pass on to one of the Upper Planes. To pay for this insult, your soul is now destined to take the place of the one you saved.

Effect: When you die, your soul will go to the Bone Castle, where Myrkul awaits his unique punishment for you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Upon Final Death.

-Warding: 19 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Skull Lord (CR: 15, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Mystra, Goddess of Magic

Mystra's form is immersed in the magical ley lines of all worlds. There is no cantrip, nor spell without her knowledge, for she is both a self-aware divine being and the magical energies she represents. Unlike in ancient days, modern Mystra demands balance in all magics, and she especially abhors epic level spells. For those who respect her laws, they are able to wield her being and change their world as they see fit. For those who challenge her order, or try to remove magic, she shows exactly how vengeful of a goddess she can be.

Blessings

Minor: "Bright Pupil"

Deed: In defiance to local laws, you casted a spell in plain public view and without fear. This had immediate repercussions, which usually meant being banished from your home.

Effect: You may pick an additional Cantrip to add to your spell list. This Cantrip must be from your Spellcaster Class list.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: “Font of Magic”

Deed: You fulfilled a ritual that reconnected a ley line of magic to the Material Plane. The land will prosper because of this new flow of magic, as will all novice spellcasters practicing within its proximity.

Effect: You can regain any Spell Slot up to Level 5 once per Long Rest as a Bonus Action.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may never completely destroy a Magical Item, unless its wielder intends to do harm to the Weave.

Legendary: “Ageless Mind”

Deed: Mystra herself charged you with a grand task, which she knew would cause you much suffering and pain, yet you followed her request exactly and without question.

Effect: When you reach what could be considered to be old age for your Race, you stop aging any further. So long as you do not die from damage, magic, or environmental causes, you will never die. This is not true immortality, but it’s a start.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When you reach “old age”.

-Bans: Never refuse any personal request from Mystra. If you do, your aging process continues as normal.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Intelligence)

Minor: Call Lightning (LV.3 Conjunction, SRD)

Major: Arcane Gate (LV.6 Conjunction, Player’s Handbook)

Legendary: Wish (LV.9 Conjunction, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Backlash”

Offense: You founded a law that forbade the use of any magic and spellcasters within a small area (up to the size of a village). This applies even if it was for peaceful reasons.

Effect: You cannot apply your Spellcasting Modifier to any of your spells.

-Duration: Until the end of your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 13 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Mindwitness (CR:5, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Major: “Negative Aura”

Offense: You attacked a library or sanctuary dedicated to the pursuit of learning magic, killed all the major magic wielders inside, and then burned all books and scrolls you could find.

Effect: If someone casts a spell at one of your allies, you must roll an Intelligence Check at DC 16. Upon a failure, the spell targets you instead.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When your ally is targeted by a spell.

-Warding: 16 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Death Kiss (CR: 10, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Magic Bleed”

Offense: You tried to learn an Epic Level spell, but failed miserably in your first attempt to cast it.

Effect: Each time you try to cast a spell, you take 1d8 Magical Damage. This damage applies even if your spell fails.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever you attempt to cast a spell.

-Warding: 20 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Beholder (CR:13, Monster Manual)

Oghma, God of Knowledge

Thought, in the view of Oghma, is the most powerful thing in the universe. With an idea, civilizations may go to war, be at peace, or expand to other lands. Friends can become foes, and foes can become lovers. It is all within the mind that everything may change, and that is where Oghma's power resides. To those who create new ideas or preserve the old ones, he smiles upon their efforts to keep ideas communicated to the masses and throughout time. Liars earn a special hatred in his heart, and they do not know the dark fate that awaits them.

Blessings

Minor: "See the Truth"

Deed: You defended a weak commoner who was being arrested for speaking the truth to the public.

Effect: Your next Insight Check is rolled at Advantage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Upon your next Insight Check.

-Bans: X

Major: “Eureka”

Deed: You learned a valuable secret, and you revealed it at the most perfect time that prevented combat between two life-long enemies. In fact, it made them rethink their hatred and consider a peaceful talk.

Effect: Upon your next Long Rest, Oghma will visit you in your dreams. He will allow you to ask one question about your life, and he will answer honestly. However, the more encompassing of a question (“What’s the meaning of it all?”) will receive an increasingly vague answer (“The meaning you make of it”). Dungeon Masters should take care before granting this Blessing, as it might reveal some major plot points.

-Duration: X

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Legendary: “Round Trip”

Deed: You created a unique concept and without any outside assistance or influences. You then pursued this concept until it finally became popular, and then it changed the view of thousands if not the whole world. An example would be spreading the concept of Democracy where only Oligarchy existed, or that you should wash your hands with soap to prevent the spread of diseases. This isn’t specific to inventions, but they aren’t excluded.

Effect: For only one time, you and eight allies can be transported to the House of Knowledge. You must abide by the rules of Oghma’s divine realm, but you can stay as long as you wish. If you or your allies choose to leave, they may do so at any time. However, once you or they leave, there is no return.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must not aid any of Oghma’s personal enemies (Mask, Cyric, Talos, Bane, and Leira.)

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: Identity (LV.1 Divination, SRD)

Major: Legend Lore (LV.5 Divination, SRD)

Legendary: True Seeing (LV.6 Divination, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Ash Eyes”

Offense: You burned a book, because you were afraid of the ideas it would give to a younger generation.

Effect: You cannot read, and you are at Disadvantage for sight-based Perception Checks.

-Duration: Until your next Short Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 13 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Quadrone (CR:1, Monster Manual)

Major: "Truth Revealed"

Offense: You orchestrated the murders of over five people, because they disobeyed your direct orders to not investigate a hidden or locked room full of books and scrolls. This hidden tome of knowledge holds a secret which Oghma had deemed worthy of being revealed.

Effect: When you are taken to trial for these murders, an illusionary window into your past will reveal your actions and deeds towards the murders in question."

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever you are questioned before a court of law.

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Shield Guardian (CR: 7, SRD)

Legendary: "Mind Expansion"

Offense: You permanently killed someone who was noticed by Oghma as one of the few individuals with an original idea. This murder was carried out by you, even though you knew of the individuals' potential. This act was done in service to one of the enemy gods of Oghma.

Effect: On your next Long Rest, Oghma will fill your mind with as much information and ideas as possible. You receive 200 Psychic Damage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Upon the next Long Rest.

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Star Spawn Seer (CR: 13, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Savras, God of Divination and Fate

It is believed that Savras has seen the future of the entire universe, which is why he seems so calm in any situation. Having lost his place as the God of Wizards to Azuth, he and his followers focus within the magical realm of divination. Knowing that his followers can never perfectly see the future, he assists them in “guiding fate” as best as they can understand it. Those who see the future and try to outright prevent it earn his distrust. Those who try to massively change the future for their own benefit earn his wrath.

Blessings

Minor: “Deja Vu”

Deed: Your immediate future was foretold, and you wisely did not attempt to change it, even though the event will harm you in some way.

Effect: When you fail on your next roll by 3 or less, you see the error of your move and may reroll it.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest, or after being used once.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must accept the fate of what was foretold that gave you this Blessing.

Major: “Reja Vu”

Deed: You found a spellcaster using Divination to change their future in direct opposition to the flow of fate, and you destroyed them before their plan could be completed.

Effect: While you sleep during your next Long Rest, you are given a vision in which you will make a grave mistake. You may choose to reroll any one roll within 24 hours.

-Duration: 24 Hours.

-Triggers: When you fail a roll and choose to reroll it.

-Bans: You must still encounter the situation, allowing you to change the moment rather than avoid it.

Legendary: “Foresight”

Deed: The flow of fate had been changed from its original course, and somehow you were able to get it back. This is a phenomenal feat, and it normally is impossible for mortals.

Effect: You are given a vision in which one of your close allies will die a permanent death. When the ally dies, your Dungeon Master allows you to roleplay a scene that happened earlier. This allows you to have an emotional last moment together, as well as exchange important information.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: When one of your close allies dies.

-Bans: Neither they nor you can change their fated death.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: Augury (LV.2 Divination, SRD)

Major: Scrying (LV.5 Divination, SRD)

Legendary: Foresight (LV.9 Divination, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “False Prophet”

Offense: You lied about being a seer and gave false information about the future. The lies resulted in the death of the customer.

Effect: Critical Failures also count on 2’s.

-Duration: For the next 72 hours.

-Triggers: Rolling a 2 on any roll.

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Nothic (CR: 2, Monster Manual)

Major: “Out of Luck”

Offense: You repeatedly used divination spells to win at gambling and bets, eventually gaining you enough wealth to become one of the top ten richest individuals in a major city.

Effect: You make all rolls involving a game of chance at Disadvantage. Gambling that doesn't require you to roll will always fail for you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever you gamble.

-Warding: 15 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Cloaker (CR: 8, SRD)

Legendary: “Dual Existence”

Offense: You managed to change the flow of fate, and it was to the detriment of everyone other than you. You cared not for this, since only your future mattered to you.

Effect: You are constantly haunted by the memories of the original timeline. After every Long Rest, you must make a Wisdom Roll at DC 10. If you fail, you take 2d8 Psychic Damage and make all Wisdom Saves at Disadvantage until your next Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When you take your next Long Rest.

-Warding: 17 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Balhannoth (CR: 11, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Selûne, Goddess of the Moon

Selune, the ageless and ancient goddess, brings light into darkness and chaos on the waters. Her three forms of the maiden, mother, and the crone perfectly represent her ever-changing personality and forms, but she is consistent in her war towards evil. She aids those lost in the night, and she favors those brave enough to traverse the darkness. She has an eternal fury for her sister Shar and anyone else who tries to spread her sister's evil.

Blessings

Minor: "Starry Sight"

Deed: You took a quest to kill a creature that only hunts on a full moon, and you succeeded in completely eradicating the danger.

Effect: You get Advantage when trying to Navigate while you can see the stars.

-Duration: One month (30 days).

-Triggers: Whenever you can clearly see the stars.

-Bans: X

Major: “Friend of the Beast”

Deed: You captured and bound a lycanthrope. Instead of killing it, you worked with the lycanthrope overtime and convinced it to fight back its feral instincts. It was able to abandon its magically-induced Evil Alignment, accepting its reduction of power.

Effect: When under the light of the full moon, as a Bonus Action, you can take on a lycanthrope’s Hybrid Form. You retain all its creature abilities and bonuses; damage immunities, attacks, and shapechanging. You return to your normal form after 1 minute.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once and lasts 1 minute.

-Triggers: When under the light of the full moon.

-Bans: You may not attack a lycanthrope until they attack you first.

Legendary: “Serene Light”

Deed: You removed a legendary curse from Shar, which was slowly consuming the land in darkness and death.

Effect: If you are under moonlight, you regain 1d4 HP per Turn. This healing does not apply if you are 0 HP and are making Death Saving Throws.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When under moonlight.

-Bans: All followers of Shar are your enemy. You may never ally yourself with one of them unless you are working together for immediate survival.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Moonbeam (LV.2 Evocation, SRD)

Major: Heal (LV.2 Evocation, SRD)

Legendary: Crown of Stars (LV.7 Evocation, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Curses

Minor: “Ire of the Maiden”

Offense: You purposefully ruined a celebration being practiced by youths in Selune’s honor.

Effect: On a night of a Waxing Moon, if you find yourself in the wilds, you are completely lost. All attempts to roll Survival for navigation are at Disadvantage, and you keep hearing the laughter of children in the distance.

-Duration: For a month (30 days).

-Triggers: When under the light of a Waxing Moon.

-Warding: 11 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Yeth Hound (CR: 4, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Major: “Ire of the Mother”

Offense: Without provocation, you slaughtered a pack of good-aligned shapechangers who were devoted to the worship of Selune.

Effect: Whenever you try to pick up a weapon, you are overwhelmed with the sense of shame. In order to hold a melee weapon, you must make a Wisdom Saving Throw at DC 10. Failure means that you cannot hold the weapon.

-Duration: Until the third dawn.

-Triggers: Whenever you try to pick up a weapon.

-Warding: 15 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Autumn Eladrin (CR: 10, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Ire of the Crone”

Offense: You defiled a sacred altar of Selune under a new moon, and then converted it to an altar of Shar, staining it with primeval darkness and evil.

Effect: The light of the moon shines impossibly bright upon you. Whenever you are under moonlight, your sight-based Perception Checks are all at Disadvantage. If under a full moon, you are considered to have the Blinded Condition.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Whenever under moonlight.

-Warding: 19 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Gray Render (CR: 12, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Shar, Goddess of Darkness and Loss

Shar absolutely abhors her own existence and in fact the existence of every other thing too. She longs for the eternal rest of the Abyss, but until that time comes, she holds her hatred for life and light close to her cold dark center. Though she despises mortals, she also wants to teach them that joy and life are lies, and that only through complete obliteration may they be free of those lies. Those who believe her are gifted with her dark magics. All others are forced to suffer.

Blessings

Minor: “Faded Pain”

Deed: You swear allegiance and your devotion to Shar, embracing the darkness and following her teachings.

Effect: A painful memory of yours is erased from your mind. It no longer troubles you, and your personality changes accordingly.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: X

Major: “Caress of Darkness”

Deed: You sacrificed your parents (or parental figures) in a sacred temple of Shar. This act symbolizes you abandoning the light and embracing the purity of nothingness.

Effect: You may cast the spell Arms of Hadar as if it was a Cantrip; costing you no spell slot. You learn this spell, even if it is not allowed by your Class, and you use your natural Spellcasting Modifier (or Charisma if you have none).

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may never pray nor worship Selune or any other light divinity.

Legendary: “Scion of Darkness”

Deed: You passed many deadly ritualistic tests, and at the end of your path, you freely gave away your memories and identity to Shar. She molds you in her own image.

Effect: When you are shrouded in darkness, be it natural or magical, your AC is increased by +2.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may never actively question your past or pursue hints of your true past.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Dexterity)

Minor: Darkness (LV.2 Evocation, SRD)

Major: Negative Energy Flood (LV.5 Necromancy, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Legendary: Antimagic Field (LV.8 Abjuration, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Dark Flash”

Offense: You casted a light-creating spell within one of Shar’s holy temples. Specifically in a room that has a statue of Shar within it.

Effect: Magical darkness is conjured within your eyes, and you are afflicted with the Blinded Condition.

-Duration: 1 minute

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Allip (CR:5, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Major: “Night Terrors”

Offense: You helped an unwilling servant of Shar remember crucial details of their past.

Effect: Shar haunts you in your dreams with your own dreaded memories. You receive 3d8 Psychic Damage when you wake up from your next Long Rest.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: When you take your next Long Rest.

-Warding: 15 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Alhoon (CR: 10, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: “Ghost of the Past”

Offense: On a massive scale, you eradicated a magical darkness that was covering a section of land normally graced by sunlight.

Effect: Whenever you are about to attack a servant of Shar, you are immediately assaulted by the spell Phantasmal Killer, for which you must make a Wisdom Saving Throw at DC 15. If you fail, subsequent rolls must be made at this same difficulty. The images you see are from your own haunted past.

-Duration: Permanent; once per battle scene.

-Triggers: Whenever attacking a servant of Shar.

-Warding: 17 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Eidolon (CR: 12, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Silvanus, God of Wild Nature

Silvanus, the Forrest Father, is as wild and carefree as the untamed lands he claims as his domain. He cares not for the concerns of civilization or intelligent individuals, but for the balance of all types of wilderness. There must be equal parts death and growth to maintain such balance, and he will gift those he deems worthy of his notice. However, to those who see the wilds as resources to be tamed, cultivated, and destroyed, he releases the full extent of his power and devours their bodies and buildings in new growth.

Blessings

Minor: “Green Thumb”

Deed: After the destruction of some war or an accident, you spent weeks or even months helping to replant the lost flora and aid in the forest healing itself.

Effect: You can take a seed of any plant, bury it in the ground, and within a minute it magically grows to its full height and length possible. If it is bound or restricted from this, it will grow as fully as it can. This does not cause destruction, as planting a tree in some mud will not topple a building.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Do not harvest or destroy the part of the forest you helped to repair.

Major: “Rejuvenate”

Deed: You found the dead corpse of a treant and then used your magic to help the tree body regrow and become alive again. Although this did not bring the treant back to life, your efforts were still appreciated. The treant cannot have received any Fire Damage when it died or after.

Effect: If your HP falls to 0 and you are lying upon soil, green vines grow over your body and begin to heal your wounds. At the end of your next turn, you regain half of your HP and lose any temporary Conditions you are suffering.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: When your HP is 0 and you are lying upon soil.

-Bans: You cannot harm the tree you restored, and you must defend it if you know it is in danger.

Legendary: “One with the Land”

Deed: You destroyed an avatar of either Malar, Talona, or Talos, allowing their released magics to the nearby wilderness and help it flourish.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you may cast the spell Commune with Nature, using Wisdom as your Spellcasting Modifier if you do not have one.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may never take action that would cause great harm to the wilds, no matter the reason.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Constitution)

Minor: Entangle (LV.1 Conjuraton, SRD)

Major: Conjure Woodland Beings (LV.4 Conjuraton, SRD)

Legendary: Mass Polymorph (LV.9 Transmutation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Poisonberry”

Offense: You slaughtered an innocent animal for nothing other than the satisfaction of killing it, and then you burned its corpse without eating of its flesh.

Effect: Any wild fruit picked or animal freshly killed and then eaten will cause you to roll a Constitution Check at DC 10. Failure means that you get the Poisoned Condition until after a Long Rest.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: When you eat wild fruit or a freshly killed animal.

-Warding: 11 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Giant Boar (CR.2, SRD)

Major: "Clear Cutter"

Offense: You harvested an area of wild ancient growth for its resources, and you did not ask the forest spirits for permission nor pray to the gods for forgiveness.

Effect: You are at Disadvantage when trying to use any Charisma-related Check against Plants and Beasts.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Corpse Flower (CR: 8, Monsters of the Multiverse)

Legendary: "Stain of the Wilds"

Offense: Not only did you destroy a large area of wilderness, but you took actions that would prevent the return of forest growth to the area ever again. Some examples would be salting the soil, dropping the land below the water level, or increasing a nearby desert boundary.

Effect: Anytime you enter the forest, you are attacked by a Polymorph Spell with a Wisdom Save of DC 15. If you fail, you are immediately transformed to a Beast with a CR of 1 or lower. This spell attacks you once per Long Rest until you exit the forested wilderness.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When you enter an untamed forested area.

-Warding: 15 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Remorhaz (CR:11, SRD)

Sune, Goddess of Love and Beauty

Within beauty and love, Sune will always be found. She is a victim only to her heart's desires, and so is everyone else who returns her fleeting affections. She is not a god of vengeance or cruelty, though her passions sometimes inspire obsessions in her followers. Those who embrace the purity of love are blessed with her favor, as are those with a natural born beauty. She does not hate those born of lower appearance, but she does take her revenge when beauty is maliciously marred.

Blessings

Minor: "Suave"

Deed: Inspired by love, you created a work of art and dedicated it to Sune. You also gave this gift to your amore, even if you knew they would never return your affections.

Effect: You gain the ability Telepathy, but you can only use it upon those who you could be reasonably attracted to.

-Duration: For one week.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not use this on your one True Love, if you do have one.

Major: “Lover’s Bravery”

Deed: When your love interest was placed in danger, you abandoned all other concerns and quests to immediately save them. This act had many negative consequences, and your life might never be the same ever again.

Effect: You get Advantage on Persuasion Checks involving convincing others to help you in your love’s quest, and you gain 10 Temporary HP.

-Duration: After your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must try all you must to save your love interest until they make it clear they don’t feel the same way.

Legendary: “True Love’s Kiss”

Deed: Sune was so inspired by your devotion to your True Love that she wanted you for herself. She made the offer (not in her true form), but you rejected the offer for your True Love. Because of it being True Love, she accepted your answer and let you continue.

Effect: When you find your True Love, you may kiss them and apply a True Resurrection spell if dead, a Remove Curse spell if cursed, or even a Wish spell if that is the only thing which will return them to the Material Plane unharmed.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: Upon kissing the remains of your True Love (or last known location if there are no remains).

-Bans: You may never be in love with another individual.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Enthrall (LV.2 Enchantment, SRD)

Major: Confusion (LV.4 Enchantment, SRD)

Legendary: Glibness (LV.8 Transmutation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Bite the Tongue”

Offense: Knowing that your ally was in love with someone, you took it upon yourself to woo and flirt with that person to have them for yourself.

Effect: Whenever speaking to a potential love interest, the first sentence out of your mouth will be what you truly think and feel about the person.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: When speaking to a potential love interest.

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: X

Major: "Parental Chain"

Offense: You lie to your love interests in the hopes that they or you have a child that you have no intention of raising. This person then prays to Sune for justice.

Effect: Whenever an offspring of yours attempts to track you down, they make all rolls to do so with Advantage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When a child of yours seeks you out.

-Warding: 14 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: X

Legendary: "Love's Eternal Flame"

Offense: You sacrificed someone's true love in front of them. This sacrifice was done to complete some sort of evil-natured spell which would increase your powers. The tortured survivor then as their next action prays to Sune for vengeance upon you. (Note to DMs: True Loves are rare and should not be treated lightly.)

Effect: You are immediately struck by a successful Power Word Kill spell.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: Immediate.

-Warding: 20 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: X

Talona, Goddess of Disease and Poison

Talona's power sways with the ever-twisting spiral of disease and death. With the rise of humanoids, thus rises diseases and poisons, and then their numbers fall, and so too does Talona's influence. She is envious of the powers of her fellow evil-aligned gods, and she loves to torture anyone within her power. There are very few who would follow under the banner of such a divinity, but those who do are cherished by Talona. She has many enemies, and even her allies treat her without her deserved respect.

Blessings

Minor: "Immune Servant"

Deed: You infiltrated a hospital or other house of healing, and then you sabotaged their efforts to contain a disastrous disease.

Effect: You are immune to all diseases.

-Duration: For 30 days.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never take or administer any medication. Magic spells do not count towards this ban.

Major: “The Serpent’s Pupil”

Deed: You created a new type of venom never seen before, and you made sure to share the formula to the world.

Effect: If you do not have Proficiency with the Poisoner’s Kit, you do now. If you already have Proficiency, you get to double it when creating poisons.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never administer an antidote to someone you’ve poisoned.

Legendary: “Carrier”

Deed: You managed to kill over a thousand in the name of Talona; all by either disease or poisons.

Effect: You can touch a humanoid and choose to infect them with a disease (such as Sewer Rot) to which you are immune. They must make the usual Constitution Saving Throw, and they will not inherently know that they have been infected when they fail.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must successfully infect one humanoid per week with your disease.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Constitution)

Minor: Ray of Sickness (LV.1 Necromancy, Player’s Handbook)

Major: Contagion (LV.5 Necromancy, SRD)

Legendary: Abi-Dalzim's Horrid Wilting (LV.8 Necromancy, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Curses

Minor: “Weakened”

Offense: You personally made sure that the healers of a small village knew how to cure a recurring disease in their territory.

Effect: For the next disease you encounter, you roll your Saving Throw at Disadvantage.

-Duration: 30 Days, or until used once.

-Triggers: Encountering the next disease.

-Warding: 11 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Yuan-ti Malison (CR: 3, BR)

Major: “Infected”

Offense: You managed to resurrect a creature after it had been killed by a very powerful and legendary venom. The recurrent damage from the venom must have been what dealt the death blow.

Effect: After waking up from a Long Rest, you must succeed on a Constitution Saving Throw of DC 10 or receive 1d4 Poison Damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 14 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Yuan-ti Abomination (CR: 7, BR)

Legendary: “Spider’s Kiss”

Offense: You were able to defeat Talona’s attempt of introducing a new disastrous disease into the world.

Effect: Whenever you kiss someone on the lips, and they kiss back, they are assaulted by Wyvern Poison. This also applies if someone tries to bandage your wounds, such as when trying to stabilize you.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Upon a reciprocated kiss or when being bandaged.

-Warding: 18 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Vampire (CR: 13, SRD)

Talos, God of Storms

The raging storm will one day prove its might and destroy the Material Plane and all the others, and only the Destroyer will remain. So say the followers of Talos. He challenges the land to tremble at his strength and be pulled away rock by rock. He challenges mortals to oppose him and have their flesh torn by his winds. He challenges the gods to face him in combat and have their domains consumed into his own. He does nothing if not to prove to others that he is the mightiest of all, and he orders his followers to continue his praise to the fearful and mindlessly hopeful.

Blessings

Minor: “Blood Eyes”

Deed: You killed a talented spellcaster in combat, and you landed the killing blow while never dropping your Rage as a Barbarian.

Effect: Next time you Rage, you get an additional +1 on your Melee Weapon attacks.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest, or until used once.

-Triggers: Going into your next Rage.

-Bans: In your next major combat, you must Rage.

Major: “Burning Fury”

Deed: During combat, you were reduced below 0 HP, but you rolled a natural 20 on a Death Saving Throw. You then dealt the final blow to an enemy while never gaining more HP until after your enemy died.

Effect: If you lose half your HP in one hit from a foe, you immediately gain 20 Temporary HP.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Losing half your HP in one hit.

-Bans: You can never use a shield or dodge an attack.

Legendary: “Might”

Deed: You fought and killed a Creature of CR 16 or higher without allies.

Effect: You gain +2 to your Strength Score, allowing your max rating to be increased to 22.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You are unquestionably the leader of your party, and you must defend your title if you are challenged.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Strength)

Minor: Gust of Wind (LV.2 Evocation, SRD)

Major: Chain Lightning (LV.6 Evocation, SRD)

Legendary: Whirlwind (LV.7 Evocation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Cowardice”

Offense: You insulted the honor of a Talossan, but when they challenged you to combat, you chose to decline out of fear.

Effect: When you enter combat with a Talossan, you must make a Wisdom Saving Throw of DC 12 or take the Frightened Condition targeted at the Talossan.

-Duration: A week (7 days).

-Triggers: When you fight a devout Talossan.

-Warding: 12 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Red Dragon Wyrmling (CR: 4, SRD)

Major: “Without Honor”

Offense: Instead of fighting the forces of Talos directly, you discovered a way in which to kill off all your enemies without you having to enter combat. An example would be that you tricked your enemies to swim through oil, only to light them all on fire with a lit arrow. All of them had to die from this tactic, without any of them being able to fight back.

Effect: You are haunted by dreams of having to fight in hand-to-hand combat and losing. Every morning you take 1d4 Bludgeoning Damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When you wake up from a Long Rest.

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Fomorian (CR: 8, Monster Manual)

Legendary: “Weak of Heart”

Offense: You interrupted the ritual of “Calling Down the Thunder” moments before the lightning bolt was able to kill the ‘intelligent’ sacrifice. You then managed to escape with the intended sacrifice without ever having to shed a single drop of blood, be it your own or an enemy’s.

Effect: Your Strength Score is reduced by 2 points, lowering your maximum to 18.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 17 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Adult Black Dragon (CR: 14, Monster Manual)

Tempus, God of War

Although being the God of War, Tempus was focused more on the act of war rather than creating war. He has no true foe or ally, for he does not feel the need to personally attack the other gods. His allegiances even to mortals has always been chaotic, and it is said he does not abandon one army for another. He simply supports both sides, but he always wins. His followers are similarly drawn to combat, and while they do have temples of worship, they do not combine their political duties with the wishes of their god. They fight because they love war.

Blessings

Minor: “Fearless”

Deed: Even though you knew you’d certainly die, you ran into combat with vigor and all the strength you could muster. All the while, you prayed to Tempus for a glorious death.

Effect: You are immune to the Frightened Condition.

-Duration: Until the beginning of your next Short or Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You cannot rest until the battle is over.

Major: “Honorable”

Deed: You accepted an official duel from an opponent who was obviously stronger than you. You did not fight unfairly, and you did not request your allies to assist you.

Effect: Tempus’ favor of you can be felt by any of his followers. You make Charisma-based Checks at Advantage towards the “Hammers” as well as anyone who wears his symbol or speaks his prayers during combat.

-Duration: 1 Month (30 Days).

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not lie to any follower of Tempus.

Legendary: “Noble”

Deed: Even though you knew your army would be slaughtered, you agreed to the laws of war and met the enemy’s superior forces on the battlefield. You did not need to do this, and your army would have mostly survived if you refused. You did not refuse, and you stood with your army at the frontline.

Effect: You are immune to any spell that requires you to make a Saving Throw. Your AC is considered to be +5 against targeted spells.

-Duration: Until the end of combat.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must keep fighting, even if all of your forces are dead.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Shield (LV.1 Abjuration, SRD)

Major: Stoneskin (LV.4 Abjuration, SRD)

Legendary: Power Word Heal (LV.9 Evocation, Player’s Handbook)

Curses

Minor: “Coward’s Sobbing”

Offense: You sent off your loyal servants or allies to fight your enemy while you used the diversion to escape. Before doing this, you invoked a prayer to Tempus to give them courage.

Effect: If you try to Stealth, you cannot help but sob for the loss of your allies, which allows those pursuing you to find you with ease.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: When using Stealth.

-Warding: 13 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Troll (CR: 5, SRD)

Major: “Traitor’s Bane”

Offense: You were captured during war and brought to your enemies. They allowed you to survive if you revealed all your force’s secrets and then swore to fight for your captors on the battlefield. You agreed and slew those who were once your allies.

Effect: Your entire body is covered in magical brands. Anyone can make an Arcana Check at DC 15 to know that these brands confess you as a vile traitor. All devout followers of Tempus immediately know what the marks mean.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Stone Giant Dreamwalker (CR: 10, Volo’s Guide to Monsters)

Legendary: “Villain’s Fate”

Offense: You swore an oath to Tempus to abide by certain laws of combat with your enemy. This was done in a sacred temple to Tempus and overseen by a Warlyon. As soon as you had a chance, you broke your oath and slaughtered your foes without mercy. Then you attacked the temple, killing the Warlyon to hide your crime.

Effect: At the next dawn (or at the beginning of your next Long Rest), you will be transported to the realm of Warriors Rest, where you will be attacked by the army of warriors there until you reach your final death. Once you do die, your soul will be bound to a battlefield dummy to be attacked and ridiculed for all eternity.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: At the next dawn (or at the beginning of your next Long Rest).

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Adult Green Dragon (CR: 15, SRD)

Torm, God of Courage and Self-Sacrifice

Divine law is worth sacrificing oneself, so says and abides Torm. He is favored among paladins, and he expects his followers to lay down their lives in service to the greater good. Unlike many other gods, he will actively join battle in the other realms, though he must prevent himself from doing so in the Material Plane. Divine law is everything to Torm, and he will nor could he ever betray it. His hatred is reserved for those who attempt to poison his followers, and for those who lost their way towards evil and chaos.

Blessings

Minor: “Pure Vigilance”

Deed: There was a situation where if you publicly denied your god, you would have avoided much pain for yourself and your party. However, you chose to honor your god and declared your allegiance with pride.

Effect: As a paladin, you may use Divine Sense and additional time per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never deny you follow your god, even for the purpose of deception.

Major: “Mercy”

Deed: You were in battle with a powerful enemy, but instead of dealing a powerful blow and ending their life, you chose to heal an innocent bystander with your Lay On Hands Paladin ability.

Effect: You can now restore a total number of hit points equal to your paladin level × 6.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You must not purposefully or accidentally strike an innocent bystander while in battle.

Legendary: “Hand of Justice”

Deed: While in battle, your Legendary-level enemy was able to Charm all of your party except you, and each member of your party struck you. On your turn, instead of trying to remove the spell effect, you used the highest level of Divine Smite available to you upon your enemy and killed them.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you can spend a 1st Level Spell Slot with your Divine Smite, and you get the maximum 5d8 additional dice damage to your strike.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You cannot allow an evil law-breaker to flee justice, no matter what they did to help you and your party on your quest.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: Shield of Faith (LV.1 Abjuration, SRD)

Major: Banishment (LV.4 Abjuration, SRD)

Legendary: Holy Aura (LV.8 Abjuration, SRD)

Curses

Minor: “Foretold Smite”

Offense: You casted a spell against a Lawful-Good Paladin that turned their alignment to Evil, if only temporarily.

Effect: The next time a Paladin uses Divine Strike against you, they do so with Advantage to hit. They must declare they are using Divine Strike beforehand to receive the Advantage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: Being struck with a Divine Strike.

-Warding: 12 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Couatl (CR:4, SRD)

Major: “Costly Absolution”

Offense: You took an action that was in direct violation of your Paladin’s Oath. Not only that, but you did so in direct disobedience to your god and/or enjoyed the act.

Effect: To regain your patron god’s favor, a small act of penitence will not do. You will receive a vision which will inform you of what to do, but until then, you cannot use Divine Sense, Lay on Hands, Smite, Sacred Oath, Aura of Protection, Aura of Courage, or Cleansing Touch. If you become an Oathbreaker, you will never be forgiven and cannot accept any other Oath.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Deva (CR:10, SRD)

Legendary: “Doomed”

Offense: You became an Oathbreaker and chose to strike back at the god you served. You managed to find one of the few offspring or angels of your god, and you tortured the being until finally killing it.

Effect: Your maximum HP is reduced by 1 after every Long Rest you finish. This is cumulative, and eventually, you will reach 0 and permanently die.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Upon waking up from every Long Rest.

-Warding: 20 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Adult Bronze Dragon (CR: 15, SRD)

Tymora, Goddess of Good Fortune

Fortune favors the bold, and so too does Tymora. Being the goddess of good luck, she believes that only those willing to take risks should be rewarded by her. Those who find themselves unwilling to sacrifice their comfort do not need nor deserve her, and they are best left alone. Unlike her sister Beshaba, Tymora never felt the need to seek vengeance or retribution on anyone. Other than her sister, she didn't see the actions of others as purely menacing, but rather attempts to gain a little more favor and good fortune. She does, however, love to play tricks on the deserving.

Blessings

Minor: "Lucky Copper Coin"

Deed: You wagered a large amount of your fortune at a game of chance. When you lost, you were cheerful and congratulated others on their luck and genuinely thanked everyone for a good time.

Effect: You may choose to have Advantage on the next game of chance that you play, but only on one single roll.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Choosing to use the ability on a game of chance.

-Bans: X

Major: “Nothing to Lose”

Deed: Your party found themselves having to buy or gamble for an item they absolutely needed in order to continue their quest. Not only did you give all your money, but you gave away all your Inventory Items with a value over 100GP. You were practically broke after the purchase or gamble.

Effect: You must have absolutely no money on your person for this ability to work (this does not include any inherent value of your Inventory). Once per Long Rest, you may re-roll a single Skill Check.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Have no money and choose to re-roll a Skill Check.

-Bans: X

Legendary: “Fortune’s Favor”

Deed: You sacrificed your life for a chance at the best possible outcome against an enemy. Your sacrifice didn’t promise a good outcome, but only allowed the possibility. Your party then used a Resurrection Spell to return you to life.

Effect: If you are ever in need of a non-magical item that is worth less than 101GP, it will naturally appear on your body or within your immediate surroundings. If what you need is under 1,001, the same thing will happen once per Long Rest.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: In need of a non-magical item.

-Bans: X

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Find Steed (LV.2 Conjuration, SRD)

Major: Heroes’ Feast (LV.6 Conjuration, SRD)

Legendary: Mighty Fortress (LV.8 Conjuration, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Curses

Minor: “Misplace”

Offense: You cheated at a game of chance, even though you knew the person you duped would starve because of it.

Effect: The next time you need a specific Item in your Inventory (that isn’t Magical), you will not be able to find it. It will reappear on your body after your next Long Rest.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: When you next need a normal Inventory Item.

-Warding: 11 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: X

Major: "Hearing Voices"

Offense: You punished a group of well-intentioned adventurers for nothing other than seeking out adventure. You imprisoned and/or gave a hefty fine for their "insolence".

Effect: When in silence, you constantly hear the voices of those adventurers in the obscured distance. You can't hear any specific words, but you are certain they are trying to escape the prison (or steal from you if it was only a fine).

-Duration: Until the next Dawn.

-Triggers: When in silence.

-Warding: 14 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: X

Legendary: "Slippery Shoes"

Offense: You hired a group of adventurers to help you in defeating a terrible foe. When they did, you then threatened them with imprisonment or death unless they gave you the greatest treasure they found while on their quest. They had no choice but to acquiesce to your demand.

Effect: Whenever you must chase these adventurers for more than 25ft, you must make a Dexterity Saving Throw at DC 15. If you fail, you fall down and become Prone and lose your Action and Bonus Action.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When chasing the target for more than 25ft.

-Warding: 17 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: X

Tyr, God of Justice

For every unlawful action, there must be an equal and fair punishment. Tyr had sacrificed his hand to secure the safety of innocent souls, so he was no stranger to the cost of keeping the law. He had also become blind over time, helping him to be swayed even less by the trappings of evil gods and their servants. Though many view him as a god of punishment, he does not enjoy the punishment; only justice. To those who upheld the law without care of personal loss, he greatly favored their honor and bravery. To the defilers of the law, swift and brutal combat is an effective end to the problem.

Blessings

Minor: “Justice Seeker”

Deed: You accepted a quest to track down a villainous lawbreaker and bring them to justice. You are doing this for no reward, other than basic supplies compensation. You also know that this person has a bounty on them, and you or others could receive this bounty if the person was turned into someone else.

Effect: As you rise after every Long Rest, you can see a vision of the person you are tracking as they are at that exact time. This vision sees whatever illusions are cast upon the person at that time too.

-Duration: Permanent, until the culprit is caught and brought to justice.

-Triggers: Upon rising from a Long Rest.

-Bans: Do not take any additional rewards for catching the target.

Major: "Sense of Justice"

Deed: You knew that a person of high importance had committed a great crime. You publicly accused the individual, even though you knew the person would not likely be found guilty. This caused you great troubles, and you eventually ended up in jail. While imprisoned, the lawbreaker was found guilty of the crime you accused them of, and you were acquitted.

Effect: If someone within 50ft of you is actively committing a crime, and you are not currently in combat, you may roll a Perception Check against their Stealth Check. Success means you are aware that a crime is being committed, but you will not have details of the crime.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: When a crime is committed within 50 ft of you.

-Bans: If you truly believe a person is guilty of a crime, do not hesitate to formally accuse the individual.

Legendary: "Blind Truth"

Deed: When the lawmakers of the land created an unjust and unfair law, you chose not to abide by it. This law was supported by the government's patron deity, but it was not aligned with the pursuit of justice. Your defiance earned the ire of the god in question, and you live everyday in danger knowing that you have an eternal and powerful foe. All who follow this deity have most likely heard of your offense and will wish you ill.

Effect: You can make an opposed Insight Check vs a target's Deception Check. Success reveals the target's alignment.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You may not accept the forgiveness of the offended god unless they also redact the unjust law.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Wisdom)

Minor: See Invisibility (LV.2 Divination, SRD)

Major: Locate Creature (LV.4 Divination, SRD)

Legendary: True Resurrection (LV.9 Necromancy, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Guilty Conscience"

Offense: You lied to the authorities, forcing an innocent person to be jailed and punished for crimes they didn't commit. You did this because of bribes.

Effect: You are wracked with guilt, and upon rising from your next Long Rest, you receive 1d8 Psychic Damage.

-Duration: Until after your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: When you rise from your next Long Rest.

-Warding: 13 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: Barbed Devil (CR: 5, SRD)

Major: "Black Tongue"

Offense: During a trial in which you had sworn an oath to Tyr that you would only tell the truth, you knowingly lied. Your testimony was the determining factor for the judgment of the case, which ended in a wrongful execution.

Effect: Your tongue and gums have been stained black, and you can no longer speak. You can shout and moan, but you cannot form words of any kind.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 16 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Bone Devil (CR: 9, SRD)

Legendary: "Sentenced Time"

Offense: Through blackmail, lies, treachery, and murder, you manipulated the ruling legal body into declaring you as an unchallenged ruler. Once you obtained this power, you immediately declared immoral laws into action, and the entire city/country has been plunged into chaos and even civil war.

Effect: Several decades (or perhaps centuries) of time has been stolen from your form, and you have aged into your elderly years. Your Strength, Dexterity, and Constitution are reduced by 1, and you visibly look as if you are in the last years of your life. This is indeed true, as your body is in its last 5% of its natural lifespan.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 19 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Ice Devil (CR:14, SRD)

Umberlee, Goddess of the Sea

While most gods collect the love and faith of mortals, Umberlee receives their fear, and she does so with a greedy snap of the jaw. In her churning, chaotic waters, there are riches to be gained and dangers galore. To be on her best side is mostly to not be killed by her raging temper, and those on her worst side soon find themselves drowned in her domain. She cares not for the laws of land dwellers. When they board their ships and set sail, they are now in her realm, and she is verily vengeful for the smallest of slight.

Blessings

Minor: “Paid Passage”

Deed: You discovered a large loot of gold within a sunken ship or hidden cave. As soon as you boarded your ship, you threw 1/10th of it or just one Magical Item back into the waters as a tribute to Umberlee.

Effect: While you are still sailing upon water, you get an Advantage to any Skill Check relating to navigation, fishing, sailing, and identifying aquatic creatures.

-Duration: Permanent, until you reach or walk upon land.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Never speak ill of Umberlee.

Major: “Bloody Favor”

Deed: You overheard someone cursing Umberlee’s name, and you immediately fought and killed the individual. You made sure to throw the body in the ocean and ask Umberlee for forgiveness.

Effect: Once per Long Rest, you may cast the spell Conjure Animals with Charisma being your Spellcasting Modifier if you don’t already have one. All beasts conjured must be aquatic in nature.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: Do not let your summoned beast die.

Legendary: “Proven Servant”

Deed: You founded a temple of Umberlee. This is not usually a popular move, as she is seen as an evil and destructive goddess. Nevertheless, you managed to do so against popular opinion. The temple must be elegant, respectable, and built to withstand the test of time.

Effect: Unless a spell is cast, the waters you sail upon will always be safe. Even in the strongest of storms, the waves will only gently push upon your vessel as if it were a mildly windy day. Any spells cast against you that affect the movement of the sea/ocean are done so at Disadvantage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: The temple must stand forever. If it falls, you lose your Blessing.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Dexterity)

Minor: Tidal Wave (LV.3 Conjuration, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Major: Watery Sphere (LV.4 Conjuration, Xanathar’s Guide to Everything)

Legendary: Tsunami (LV.8 Conjuration, Player’s Handbook)

Curses

Minor: “Cursed Winds”

Offense: On your third day traveling upon the sea or ocean, and you have three or more to go before your destination, you speak ill of Umberlee. This applies even if done at a whisper.

Effect: You are twice as likely to be caught in a storm.

-Duration: Until next Dawn.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 11 DC, Charisma

-Reconciler: Water Weird (CR: 3, SRD)

Major: “Albatross”

Offense: You killed a massive sea creature and laughed out loud about how easily it was slain. You also declared that you are a master of the waters, and that the sea poses no threat to you. When someone suggested you ask for Umberlee’s forgiveness, you ridiculed that person and said that you do not need it.

Effect: If there is a water-based creature of CR 10 or above that is within 10 miles of you, they are drawn to your location and have Advantage at tracking you.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: x

-Warding: 15 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: Aboleth (CR.10, SRD)

Legendary: “Sea Sick”

Offense: You stole from one of the many personal vaults of Umberlee.

Effect: Whenever you gain an Exhaustion Point while traveling across a body of water, it doubles.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Gaining Exhaustion while traveling over water.

-Warding: 17 DC, Dexterity

-Reconciler: Marid (CR.11, Monster Manual)

Waukeen, Goddess of Trade

The exchange of goods and services is a concept which evolved with the development of civilization. As mortals began to develop their cultures, moving their tribes into cities, they had to learn not only how to trade en masse but also how to create currency. As truly neutral as a gold coin, Waukeen does not care about the moral implications behind a trade, whether it be legal or illicit. All that matters is that trade happens and happens often, lest civilization begins to crumble. Those who increase commerce are blessed, while those who prosper from thievery soon meet their ill-gotten fates.

Blessings

Minor: “Spare Change”

Deed: You found an unusual item being sold by a merchant. After using a Skill Check to assess it was a very unusual or important item, you paid the full asking price without haggling or arguments. You also did not hint to the merchant that the item was worth more than what they were asking, and you didn’t ridicule them after the purchase.

Effect: The next time you are trying to purchase an item from a merchant, and you are short 10% or less of the asking price, you magically find that amount of gold pieces on your person.

-Duration: Permanent, until used once.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You cannot haggle for the item to which you apply this Blessing.

Major: "Hidden Pocket"

Deed: You were robbed of a Magical Item by a common thief. Instead of hunting down the culprit, you hired someone to take back the item, and you paid them a 20% finder's fee of the item's worth.

Effect: You have a dimension pocket hidden on your body that holds an endless amount of coins. It cannot hold anything else other than coin, and no one other than you can access it.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You can never completely empty the pocket. There must be at least 1 coin in it at all times.

Legendary: "Sacred Purchase"

Deed: You managed to avoid a war between two adversarial nations and did so not through delegation, threats, or law, but instead made a huge purchase (over 10,000 GPs) which smoothed over the situation. Had you not done this, the nations would have certainly warred and nearly destroyed each other.

Effect: You can make purchases with Waukeen directly for automatic Magical Damage against one target. 100GPs equal 1HP of Magical Damage. This takes a Full Action, and the damage cannot be avoided or reduced in any manner.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: X

-Bans: You can never use Sacred Purchase to assist in a theft, such as a diversionary tactic.

Boons (Spellcasting Modifier: Charisma)

Minor: Aid (LV. 2 Abjuration, SRD)

Major: Globe of Invulnerability (LV.6 Abjuration, SRD)

Legendary: Prismatic Spray (LV.7 Evocation, SRD)

Curses

Minor: "Hole in Pocket"

Offense: You stole a non-magical item from a merchant while they were in the middle of a very mutually beneficial exchange. Your theft prevented the sale from happening, and both parties of the sale were so infuriated that they violently attacked each other.

Effect: If you keep the item you stole for longer than after your next Long Rest, the item magically disappears from your person. It reappears in the property of its previous owner.

-Duration: After your next Long Rest.

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 11 DC, Wisdom

-Reconciler: X

Major: “Guilty Hands”

Offense: You orchestrated a heist during an exclusive and elite auction of Magical Items. Your party was able to steal all of the showcased items, leaving absolutely nothing behind for the owners to somehow cover their losses.

Effect: For every stolen Magical Item you have on your person after a Long Rest, or whenever you equip one of the Magical Items for the first time that day, you receive 1d4 Psychic Damage.

-Duration: Permanent.

-Triggers: Upon finishing a Long Rest or using the Magical Item the first time that day.

-Warding: 15 DC, Constitution

-Reconciler: Young Gold Dragon (CR: 10, SRD)

Legendary: “Simple Math”

Offense: You enforced severe and unfair taxes upon a city. They were so disproportionate to the income of the city that it went bankrupt and its economy was completely dismantled.

Effect: You have lost the ability to count above any number than 10. Even if spoken to in powers of ten (example: one hundred, a thousand, ten thousand) or another lower number, you are unable to understand. All of your ‘higher’ counting and transactions must be done for you.

-Duration: Permanent

-Triggers: X

-Warding: 20 DC, Intelligence

-Reconciler: Nalfeshnee (CR: 13, SRD)
